

2. Familyhood

What is a family?

- A family is a group of people living together, usually related by blood marriage or adoption, it may or may not include children.
- Functions of a family
  - Support
  - Provide and protect
  - Educate and encourage
  - Care and love
  - Teach and train
  - Share RPT's
- Family types
  - Two of family: when one or both people in a couple, with children from a previous relationship, or newly or ex-husbands.

Advantages: Child has both role models

There may be more interaction

Her family may have a better quality of life

Disadvantages: Children may not bond with the step-parent sibling rivalry is common, especially amongst children of similar ages

Children may have limited access to their biological parents

- Asymmetrical family: Parents/caregivers legally adopt a child/children. It is permanent

Advantages: It gives the children a family

It allows the children to enjoy a good home life

It provides opportunities for children and for adults who are infertile

Disadvantages: Children have to adjust to new home and family

Children might not get to see birth parents

Difficult adapting to new relationships, when do you tell them their adopted?

- Residential care homes: Children without families or with parents who for some reason are unable to look after children may live in these homes

Advantages: The child may have other people around them who have experienced the same situation & them, understanding what they're going through

There will be lots of support from the support from the people around them

More possible activities and involvement than most children have

Disadvantages: There isn't as much privacy with lots of people around

The child may not get along with everybody in the residential care home

- Nuclear family: Parents and their children live together away from the rest of their family

Advantages: More privacy

Parents can make their own decisions
