The ZF-500 is designed to support the required growth of grape vine shoots. Canes should be trained to bear into the support wires, as high as the vine can reach. Overbearing canes should be removed during the pruning stage.

The automatic climberTM string distance system (see Appendix 3 for details) allows the climber system to be adjusted to prevent overbearing of canes and string distance, the extent as high as allowed during:

1. Raising the system of light strings to support vines, leaving the string as high as "free air".
2. Allow the vine to reach its predetermined top (10 metres, based on an additional 2 metres to two).
3. Pruning training with a final stage of string.

After the string is set, any vines that have been allowed to overhang in the space is easily removed. Support for training to strings may be required for maintenance of the climber system during the
