

1. How did the British Empire affect the world? (1875-1914)

British ruled approximately 1/4 of the world's population, controlled about 1/3 of the world's land, and controlled nearly 1/2 of the world's trade. British rule was a double-edged sword, bringing both progress and exploitation.

What were the main reasons for British imperialism?

1. Economic motives: Britain's economy was growing rapidly, and it needed raw materials and new markets for its goods.
 - > The British Empire provided a steady supply of raw materials and a large market for British goods.
2. Strategic motives: Britain wanted to secure its global empire and protect its trade routes.
 - > The British Empire provided a global network of naval bases and coaling stations that allowed Britain to maintain its global power.
3. Cultural motives: Britain believed in the superiority of its culture and wanted to spread it to the rest of the world.
 - > The British Empire provided a platform for British culture and values to be spread to other parts of the world.
4. Nationalism: Britain wanted to expand its empire to match the power of other great powers.
 - > The British Empire provided a way for Britain to compete with other great powers for global dominance.
5. Social motives: Britain wanted to improve the lives of the people in the colonies and to spread Christianity.
 - > The British Empire provided a platform for British social and religious values to be spread to other parts of the world.
6. Is there anything wrong with imperialism? (The British Empire was a double-edged sword, bringing both progress and exploitation.)
 - > The British Empire brought progress to many parts of the world, but it also brought exploitation and oppression to many other parts of the world.

What were the main effects of British imperialism?

1. Economic effects: Britain's economy grew rapidly, and it became the world's leading industrial power.
 - > The British Empire provided a steady supply of raw materials and a large market for British goods, which helped to fuel Britain's economic growth.
2. Strategic effects: Britain's global empire was secure, and its trade routes were protected.
 - > The British Empire provided a global network of naval bases and coaling stations that allowed Britain to maintain its global power.
3. Cultural effects: Britain's culture and values were spread to other parts of the world.
 - > The British Empire provided a platform for British culture and values to be spread to other parts of the world.
4. Nationalist effects: Britain's global empire was a source of pride and power for the British people.
 - > The British Empire provided a way for Britain to compete with other great powers for global dominance.
5. Social effects: Britain's social and religious values were spread to other parts of the world.
 - > The British Empire provided a platform for British social and religious values to be spread to other parts of the world.
