Inside South Africa's Foreign Policy John Siko,2014-06-16 South Africa is a major player in African diplomacy Its economic diplomatic and military resources far outstrip those of other nations on the continent and it has since the country s 1994 democratic transition sought to take a lead role in the continent s relations with other power blocs particularly during the 1999 2008 presidency of Thabo Mbeki While Mbeki s push for greater African engagement in the global political sphere drew widespread praise other positions notably its seeming inaction toward Zimbabwe and perceived abandonment of its stated emphasis on human rights in foreignpolicy were more controversial both at home and abroad John Siko has had insider access to South Africa s leading foreign policy players and has been able to ask why Pretoria has taken its various stances and who has mattered in influencing those decisions a topic little examined since 1994 In addition he examines the foreign policy process over the past century determining that despite ANC promises of greater democratic engagement on foreign policy the process has changed quite little

Refugee Entrepreneurial Economies in Urban South Africa Jonathan Crush, Godfrey Tawodzera,2017-07-19 One of the defining characteristics of many large cities in the rapidly urbanizing global South is the high degree of informality of shelter services and economic livelihoods It is these dynamic shifting and dangerous informal urban spaces that refugees often arrive in with few resources other than a will to survive a few social contacts and a drive to support themselves in the absence of financial support from the host government and international agencies This report addresses the question of variability in economic opportunity and entrepreneurial activity between urban environments within the same destination country South Africa by comparing refugee entrepreneurship in Cape Town South Africa s second largest city and several small towns in the province of Limpopo The research shows that refugee entrepreneurial activity in Limpopo is a more recent phenomenon and largely a function of refugees moving from large cities such as Johannesburg where their businesses and lives are in greater danger The refugee populations in both areas are equally diverse and tend to be engaged in the same wide range of activities This report shows that different urban geographies do shape the local nature of refugee entrepreneurial economies but there are also remarkable similarities in the manner in which unconnected refugee entrepreneurs establish and grow their businesses in large cities and small provincial towns Towards Digitally
