- THE 2005 BUDGET will have a significant impact on the way in which the Government will be able to fund the NHS. The Government has announced that it will be introducing a new system of funding the NHS, which will be based on a new system of "health care budgets". This will mean that the Government will be able to fund the NHS in a more sustainable way, and will be able to ensure that the NHS is able to meet its long-term needs. The Government has also announced that it will be introducing a new system of "health care budgets", which will be based on a new system of "health care budgets". This will mean that the Government will be able to fund the NHS in a more sustainable way, and will be able to ensure that the NHS is able to meet its long-term needs.

- Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The physical and psychological health of the women was assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The results showed that the walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the women. The women in the walking program showed significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, body composition, and psychological well-being compared to the control group. The results suggest that a supervised walking program can be an effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
