Mother To Mother:

From Mother to Mother Lisa Faulkner, 2017-03-09 I believe that most of us cook and create by being given nuggets of inspiration We take recipes and cook from them then we cook them again and tweak them and add things and then we cook them again It was this idea of passing on favourite dishes to the next generation that inspired my first book Recipes from my Mother for my Daughter This book wouldn't have come about without an email I wrote to my family and friends who are mothers I asked them what they liked to cook and eat what their fallbacks are their comfort dishes the meals they make for their families when time is short I have tweaked rewritten added and played around with their ideas and added my own family's staples but without their willingness to share their treasured favourites there would be no book In a world that is ever changing and not always a smooth ride food is a thing that binds us So here are those treasures from mother to mother with all my love and gratitude Lisa x

Race Margaret D. Jacobs, 2009-07-01 In the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries indigenous communities in the United States and Australia suffered a common experience at the hands of state authorities the removal of their children to institutions in the name of assimilating American Indians and protecting Aboriginal people Although officially characterized as benevolent these government policies often inflicted great trauma on indigenous families and ultimately served the settler nations larger goals of consolidating control over indigenous peoples and their lands White Mother to a Dark Racetakes the study of indigenous education and acculturation in new directions in its examination of the key roles white women played in these policies of indigenous child removal Government officials missionaries and reformers justified the removal of indigenous children in particularly gendered ways by focusing on the supposed deficiencies of indigenous mothers the alleged barbarity of indigenous men and the lack of a patriarchal nuclear family Often they deemed white women the most appropriate agents to carry out these child removal policies Inspired by the maternalist movement of the era many white women were eager to serve as surrogate mothers to indigenous children and maneuvered to influence public policy affecting indigenous people Although some white women developed caring relationships with indigenous children and others became critical of government policies many became hopelessly ensnared in this insidious colonial policy

My Mother's Hip Luise Margolies, 2004 Some 400 000 hip fractures occur every year the vast majority

among the elderly all too often these fractures are associated with death or severe disability After her mother's double hip fracture Luisa Margolies immersed herself in identifying and coordinating the services and professionals needed to provide critical care for an elderly person She soon realized that the American medical system is ill prepared to deal with the long term care needs of our graying society The heart of My Mother's Hip is taken up with the author's day to day observations as her mother's condition worsened then improved only to worsen again while her father became increasingly anxious and disoriented As both a devoted daughter and a skilled anthropologist Margolies vividly renders her interactions with physicians nurses hospital workers nursing home administrators the Medicare bureaucracy home care providers and her parents In the Lessons chapter that follows each episode she discusses in a broader context the weighty decisions that adult children must make on their parents behalf and the emotional toll their responsibility takes Here she addresses the complex practical issues that commonly arise in such situations understanding the consequences of hip fracture and its treatment preparing health care proxies and advanced directives enabling elders to remain at home and the heartbreaking dilemma of prolonging life Like many adult children Margolies learned her lessons about eldercare in the midst of crises This book is intended to ease the information gathering and decision making processes for others involved in eldercare Talking about Right and Wrong Cecilia Wainryb, Holly E. Recchia, 2014-03-20 Though it is generally acknowledged that parents are directly implicated in how and what their children learn about right and wrong little is known about how the process of moral socialization proceeds in the context of family life and how it gets played out in actual parent child conversations This volume brings together psychological research conducted in different countries documenting how parents and their children of different ages talk about everyday issues that bear on right and wrong More than 150 excerpts from real parent child conversations about children's own good and bad behaviors and about broader ethical concerns that interest both parents and children such as global warming or gender equality provide a unique window into the moral socialization process in action Talking about Right and Wrong also underscores distinct psychological and sociocultural processes that explain how such everyday conversations may further or hinder children's moral development Criteria for Assessing Feasibility of Mother's Employment and Adequacy of Child-care Plans United States. Origins of the Social Mind Shoji Itakura,Kazuo Fujita,2009-02-11

During the first few years of life children acquire knowledge about the relationships between their own mental states their actions and the social world This information is then used to understand themselves and others Humans are born into families where they are raised and learn to cooperate compete and communicate We are social creatures and over the course of development we learn about people relationships social systems and others minds In addition not only do we live socially we think socially as well However human adults are not the only creatures to live and think socially In recent years sophisticated experiments have provided new information about social cognition in human infants and nonhuman animals In this book we focus on the developmental and evolutionary origins of the social mind bringing together the currently segregated views on social cognition in the two fields Ever since the term theory of mind was coined by D Premack nearly 30 years ago the concept has been the main topic of social cognition research both in developmental psychology and in primatology However few attempts have been made to integrate these two research domains Just recently researchers from the two areas collaborated to publish a book on this topic but the volume was little more than a collection of independent papers This book overcomes that limitation by presenting new data and their implications from both developmental and evolutionary points of view
