BEYOND TRADE FINANCE RUPNARAYAN BOSE, 2021-04-21 If you think that the rules of the International Chamber of Commerce ICC Paris on trade finance and documentary credits have no surprises left for you then read this book very carefully from cover to cover Whether you are a trade finance veteran or a recent entrant the articles in this book will provide you with a few unconventional and unusual perspectives about the UCP and the ISBP rules The book discusses selected provisions of UCP 600 and also raises several pertinent questions For example does the SWIFT MT700 really provide for an expiry date Is article 15 necessary Why shouldn't UCP sub article 16 f apply to a nominated bank Did you know that UCP article 10 on amendments has a huge logical error Why are some critical rules missing in the UCP they are only in the ISBP Are you aware that sub articles 14 g and 14 h on non documentary conditions are both incorrectly structured Which ICC rules apply if a presentation contains only copies of transport documents Must a B L or a MMTD show a date of issue What is negotiation Why is the place where a credit is available of critical importance to an exporter beneficiary Go ahead and read the book It will provide you with plenty of food for thought a deeper understanding of the rules of trade finance and value for money

The Re-Enchantment of the West Christopher Partridge, 2005-03-04 As a book about emergent spirituality in the contemporary West it focuses on the nature evolution and significance of new forms of religion and alternative spiritualities Part One of the book provides the theoretical background and guides the reader through some of the principal debates After an overview of the secularization thesis which argues that the West is becoming increasingly disenchanted the second chapter turns to the sociological analysis of new religions and alternative spiritualities Particular attention is given to the ideas of the sociologist of religion Ernst Troeltsch especially his enigmatic analysis of the emergence mystical religion which presciently provides helpful insights into understanding the contemporary alternative religious milieu Against sociologists such as Bryan Wilson and Steve Bruce this and the subsequent chapter argues that rather than being insignificant new forms of spirituality are actually proving to be a significant part of Western re enchantment Chapter 3 constructs a general theory of the re enchantment of the West Chris Partridge argues that Western Society is permeated by a broad occulture by which he means a reservoir of ideas beliefs theories and practices to which new religions unorthodox spiritualities film and popular music all draw attention This re enchantment of the West should not be seen as a superficial secondary development in the shadow of Christianity In many ways it is a religious phenomenon in its own right Partridge s arguments in this regard are well put and I warmly welcome this timely book Mikhael Rothstein University of Copenhagen Denmark

Molecular Marker Technology for Crop Improvement José Miguel Soriano,2021-01-15 Since the 1980s agriculture and plant breeding have changed with the development of molecular marker technology In recent decades different types of molecular markers have been used for different purposes mapping marker assisted selection characterization of genetic resources etc These have produced effective genotyping but the results have been costly and time consuming due to the small number of markers that could be tested simultaneously Recent advances in molecular marker technologies such as the development of high throughput genotyping platforms genotyping by sequencing and the release of the genome sequences of major crop plants have opened new possibilities for advancing crop improvement This Special Issue collects 16 research studies including the application of molecular markers in 11 crop species from the generation of linkage maps and diversity studies to the application of marker assisted selection and genomic prediction

Cumulated Index Medicus, 1998 Genetics and Genomics of the Triticeae Catherine Feuillet, Gary J. Muehlbauer, 2009-06-10 Sequencing of the model plant genomes such as those of Arabidopsis thaliana and rice has revolutionized our understanding of plant biology but it has yet to translate into the improvement of major crop species such as maize wheat or barley Moreover the comparative genomic studies in cereals that have been performed in the past decade have revealed the limits of conservation between rice and the other cereal genomes This has necessitated the development of genomic resources and programs for maize sorghum wheat and barley to serve as the foundation for future genome sequencing and the acceleration of genomic based improvement of these critically important crops Cereals constitute over 50% of total crop production worldwide http www fao org and cereal seeds are one of the most important renewable resources for food feed and industrial raw materials Crop species of the Triticeae tribe that comprise wheat barley and rye are essential components of human and domestic animal nutrition With 17% of all crop area wheat is the staple food for 40% of the world's population while barley ranks fifth in the world production Their domestication in the Fertile Crescent 10 000 years ago ushered in the beginning of agriculture and signified an important breakthrough in the advancement of civilization Rye is second after wheat among grains most commonly used in the production of bread and is also very important for mixed animal feeds It can be cultivated in poor soils and climates that are generally not suitable for other cereals Extensive genetics and cytogenetics studies performed in the Triticeae species over the last 50 years have led to the characterization of their chromosomal composition and origins and have supported intensive work to create new genetic resources Cytogenetic studies in wheat have allowed the identification and characterization of the different homoeologous genomes and have demonstrated the utility of studying wheat genome evolution as a model for the analysis of polyploidization a major force in the evolution of the eukaryotic genomes Barley with its diploid genome shows high collinearity with the other Triticeae genomes and therefore serves as a good template for supporting genomic analyses in the wheat and rye genomes The knowledge gained from genetic studies in the Triticeae has also been used to produce Triticale the first human made hybrid crop that results from a cross between wheat and rye and combines the nutrition quality and productivity of wheat with the ruggedness of rye Despite the economic importance of the Triticeae species and the need for accelerated crop improvement based on genomics studies the size 1.7 Gb for the bread wheat genome i.e. 5x the human genome and 40 times the rice genome high repeat content 80% and complexity polyploidy in wheat of their genomes often have been considered too challenging for efficient molecular analysis and genetic improvement in these species Consequently Triticeae genomics has lagged behind the genomic advances of other cereal crops for many years Recently however the situation has changed dramatically and robust genomic programs can be established in the Triticeae as a result of the convergence of several technology developments that have led to new more efficient scientific capabilities and resources such as whole genome and chromosome specific BAC libraries extensive EST collections transformation systems wild germplasm and mutant collections as well as DNA chips Currently the Triticeae genomics toolbox is comprised of 9 publicly available BAC libraries from diploid 5 tetraploid 1 and hexaploid 3 wheat 3 publicly available BAC libraries from barley and one BAC library from rye 3 wheat chromosome specific BAC libraries DNA chips including commercially available first generation chips from AFFYMETRIX containing 55 000 wheat and 22 000 barley genes A large number of wheat and barley genetic maps that are saturated by a significant number of markers The largest plant EST collection with 870 000 wheat ESTs 440 000 barley ESTs and about 10 000 rye ESTs Established protocols for stable transformation by biolistic and agrobacterium as well as a transient expression system using VIGS in wheat and barley and Large collections of well characterized cultivated and wild genetic resources International consortia such as the International Triticeae Mapping Initiative ITMI have advanced synergies in the Triticeae genetics community in the development of additional mapping populations and markers that have led to a dramatic improvement in the resolution of the genetic maps and the amount of molecular markers in the three species resulting in the accelerated utilization of molecular markers in selection programs Together with the development of the genomic resources the isolation of the first genes of agronomic interest by map based cloning has been enabled and has proven the feasibility of forging the link between genotype and phenotype in the Triticeae species Moreover the first analyses of BAC sequences from wheat and barley have allowed preliminary characterizations of their genome organization and composition as well as the first inter and intra specific comparative genomic studies These later have revealed important evolutionary mechanisms e.g. unequal crossing over illegitimate recombination that have shaped the wheat and barley genomes during their evolution. These breakthroughs have demonstrated the feasibility of developing efficient genomic studies in the Triticeae and have led to the recent establishment of the International Wheat Genome Sequencing Consortium IWGSC (<http://www.wheatgenome.org>) and the International Barley Sequencing Consortium (www.isbc.org) that aim to sequence respectively the hexaploid wheat and barley genomes to accelerate gene discovery and crop improvement in the next decade. Large projects aiming at the establishment of the physical maps as well as a better characterization of their composition and organization through large scale random sequencing projects have been initiated already. Concurrently a number of projects have been launched to develop high throughput functional genomics in wheat and barley. Transcriptomics, proteomics and metabolomics analyses of traits of agronomic importance such as quality, disease resistance, drought and salt tolerance are underway in both species. Combined with the development of physical maps, efficient gene isolation will be enabled and improved sequencing technologies and reduced sequencing costs will permit ultimately genome sequencing and access to the entire wheat and barley gene regulatory elements repertoire. Because rye is closely related to wheat and barley in Triticeae evolution, the latest developments in wheat and barley genomics will be of great use for developing rye genomics and for providing tools for rye improvement. Finally, a new model for temperate grasses has emerged in the past year with the development of the genetics and genomics including a 8x whole genome shotgun sequencing project of Brachypodium, a member of the Poaceae family that is more closely related to the Triticeae than rice and can provide valuable information for supporting Triticeae genomics in the near future. These recent breakthroughs have yet to be reviewed in a single source of literature and current handbooks on wheat, barley or rye are dedicated mainly to progress in genetics. In Genetics and Genomics of the Triticeae, we will aim to comprehensively review the recent progress in the development of structural and functional genomics tools in the Triticeae species and review the understanding of wheat, barley and rye biology that has resulted from these new resources as well as to illuminate how this new found knowledge can be applied for the improvement of these essential species. The book will be the seventh volume in the ambitious series of books Plant Genetics and Genomics, Richard A. Jorgensen series editor, that will attempt to bring the field up to date on the genetics and genomics of important crop plants and genetic models. It is our hope that the publication will be a useful and timely tool for researchers and students alike working with the Triticeae.
