Language and Institutional Identity in the Post-Apartheid South African Higher Education Leketi Makalela, 2022-03-21 This book examines the intersections between education identity formation and language in post apartheid South Africa with specific attention to higher education It does so against the backdrop of the core argument that the sector plays a critical role in shaping re producing and perpetuating sectoral class sub national and national identities which in turn in the peculiar South African setting are almost invariably analogous with the historical fault lines determined and dictated by language as a marker of ethnic and racial identity The chapters in the book grapple with the nuances related to these intersections in the understanding that higher education language policies overt and or covert largely structure institutional cultures or what has been described as curriculum in higher education institutions Together the chapters examine the roles played by higher education by language policies and by the intersections of these policies and ethnolinguistic identities in either constructing and perpetuating or deconstructing ethnolinguistic identities upon which the sector was founded The introductory chapter lays out the background to the entire book with an emphasis on the policy and practice perspectives on the intersections The middle chapters describe the so called White Universities Black Universities and Middle Man Minorities Universities The final chapter maps out future directions of the discourses on language and identity formation in South Africa s higher education

Charcoal, Food, and Water Production in the Tropics: Applying Nexus Thinking to Improve Research and Policy Approaches in Complex Landscapes Tuyeni Heita Mwampamba, Adrian Ghilardi, Rob Bailis, 2020-02-04 Editorial Tuyeni H Mwampamba Rob Bailis Adrian Ghilardi Urbanization food and water consumption trends in many tropical countries show that demand for charcoal as a source of cooking energy meat grain and water will rise to proportions that surpass the ability of existing ecosystems to supply these services simultaneously and at desired qualities Consequently drastic changes to policy and practice are needed to improve ecosystem potential and or alter demand trends Traditional charcoal production in sub Saharan Africa South East Asia and Latin America often competes or co exists with livestock keeping and agriculture and has a tendency to occur in water limited woodlands The co occurrence of charcoal and food production results in complex landscapes characterized by strong interactions between subsystems managed by multiple sets of actors with potentially competing objectives These social ecological systems provide goods and services that are essential to millions of people throughout the global south Nevertheless there have been very few detailed studies of such systems particularly on the individual and combined effects of charcoal crop and livestock production on the hydrological system that maintains them and vice versa As a result these multi use landscapes are typically managed by short sighted highly generalized mono sectorial policies that ignore important tradeoffs and undercapitalize on synergies A system level approach could provide important insights that improve and expand current understanding of this energy food water nexus Tackling urgent and complex problems composed of multiple and interrelated factors lies at the heart of nexus thinking an approach that examines the inter relatedness and interdependencies of environmental resources and their transitions and fluxes across spatial scales and between compartments UNU FLORES 2015 and relies on interdisciplinary research and multi sector policy teams It has attracted significant interest from international organizations the private sector and governments as a way to develop integrated equitable solutions that involve inputs from multiple stakeholders However this approach is notably absent in the research arena Identifying appropriate interventions for achieving sustainable charcoal and food production and maintaining the underlying hydrological system on which they depend requires that the systems are considered simultaneously and that their biophysical social and political inter relations are well understood Taking charcoal as the nexus entry point this Research Topic aims to generate new understanding of charcoal production systems by incorporating agriculture and hydrology into the matrix We were interested in empirical articles reviews meta analytical articles and perspective papers that address at least two of the three nexus components and which offer provocative and insightful perspectives into the nexus as a whole We hope that this Research Topic will 1 facilitate identification of research gaps policy opportunities and priorities for the nexus 2 kick start the development of a community of researchers and practitioners working on the nexus and 3 permit the development of a research agenda that explores the nexus globally across multiple study sites

African Immigrant Traders in Inner City Johannesburg Inocent Moyo,2017-09-14 This book contests the negative portrayal of African immigrants as people who are not valuable members of South African society They are often perceived as a threat to South Africa and its patrimony accused of committing crime taking jobs and competing for resources with South African citizens Unique in its deployment of a deconstructionist theoretical and analytical framework this work argues that this is a simplistic portrayal of a complex reality Inocent Moyo lays bare not only the failings of an exclusivist narrative of belonging but also a complex social reality around migration and immigration politics belonging and exclusion in contemporary South Africa Over seven chapters he introduces new perspectives on the negative portrayal of African immigrants and argues that to sustain a negative view of them as the threatening other ignores complex people place space dynamics For these reasons the analytical empirical and theoretical value of the project is that it broadens the study of migration related contexts in a South African setting Academics students policy makers and activists focusing on the migration and immigration debate will find this book invaluable

Race for Education Mark Hunter, 2019-01-24 Following the end of apartheid in 1994 the ANC government placed education at the centre of its plans to build a nonracial and more equitable society Yet by the 2010s a wave of student protests voiced demands for decolonised and affordable education By following families and schools in Durban for nearly a decade Mark Hunter sheds new light on South Africa's political transition and the global phenomenon of education marketisation He rejects simple descriptions of the country's move from race to class apartheid and reveals how white phenotypic traits like skin colour retain value in the schooling system even as the multiracial middle class embraces prestigious linguistic and embodied practices the book calls white tone By illuminating the actions and choices of both white and black parents Hunter provides a unique view on race class and gender in a country emerging from a notorious system of institutionalised racism
