Pautz, 2017-12-29 In the movies government often finds itself in a variety of roles from villain to supporting cast and rarely if ever the hero A frequent component of that role is the bureaucracy and as documented in Civil Servants on the Silver Screen Hollywood's Depiction of Government and Bureaucrats bureaucrats are routinely found on screen This book investigates how government bureaucrats are portrayed in the top ten box office grossing films from 2000 through 2015 Perhaps unsurprisingly government is generally portrayed poorly while individual government bureaucrats are typically depicted positively These images of government on screen are particularly important given the ability of movies to influence the attitudes and perceptions of its audiences The nature of these depictions and potential implications are considered as bureaucrats in film are categorized Career Movies Jack Boozer, 2010-01-01 Achieving the American Dream became inextricably linked with career business success after World War II as an increasingly consumerist America learned to define the dream through possessions and status Not surprisingly Hollywood films in the postwar years reflected the country's preoccupation with work and career success offering both dramatic and comedic visions of the career quest and its effects on personal fulfillment family relations women's roles and the creation or destruction of just and caring communities In this book Jack Boozer argues that the career business film achieved such variety and prominence in the years between 1945 and 2001 that it should be considered a legitimate film genre Analyzing numerous well known films from the entire period he defines the genre as one in which a protagonist strives for career success that often proves to be either elusive despite hard work or unfulfilling despite material rewards and status Boozer also explores several distinct subgenres of the career movie the corporate executive films of the 1950s the career struggles of single married and or parenting women the entrepreneurial film as it is also embodied in texts about immigrants and racial and ethnic minorities and business oriented femmes fatales the explosion of promotionism and the corporatization of employment and finally the blurring of work and private life in the brave new world of the televirtuality film Movies and Midrash Wendy I. Zierler, 2017-08-15 Finalist for the 2017 National Jewish Book Award in Modern Jewish Thought and Experience presented by the Jewish Book Council

Movies and Midrash uses cinema as a springboard to discuss central Jewish texts and matters of belief. A number of books have drawn on films to explicate Christian theology and belief but Wendy I Zierler is the first to do so from a Jewish perspective exploring what Jewish tradition text and theology have to say about the lessons and themes arising from influential and compelling films. The book uses the method of inverted midrash while classical rabbinical midrash begins with exegesis of a verse and then introduces a mashal parable as a means of further explication. Zierler turns that process around beginning with the culturally familiar cinematic parable and then analyzing related Jewish texts. Each chapter connects a secular film to a different central theme in classical Jewish sources or modern Jewish thought. Films covered include The Truman Show, truth, Memento, memory, Crimes and Misdemeanors, sin, Magnolia, confession and redemption, The Descendants, birthright, Forrest Gump, cleverness and simplicity, and The Hunger Games, creation of humanity in God's image among others.

African American Female Leadership in Major Motion Pictures Tracy L.F. Worley, 2024-02-09. This book explores the factors contributing to the underrepresentation of African American female directors in mainstream cinema leadership. It also unmasks the potential strategies African American female film directors might pursue to reduce this inequity. Author Tracy L.F. Worley draws on research around ethics to conclude that there are specific consequences of the male gaze on women in cinema leadership, especially African American female directors of box office cinema. Combining extensive analysis of ethics and ethical stance relative to the motion picture industry with perspectives from working African American female directors, the text discusses the ethical considerations and historical inequities, including the male gaze, and uses those findings to define how the inequities can be opportunities The efficacy model for cinematic leadership is presented as a mechanism for viewing obstacles through the lenses of gender ethnicity and culture so they become drivers for African American women to achieve success Ideal for students of directing and filmmaking as well as aspiring professional filmmakers wishing to gain a better understanding of the industry as it stands today
