Flies, 2019-03-20 Go into partnership with nature she does more than half the work and asks none of the fee Martin H Fisher Nature has undertaken an immense amount of work throughout evolution The evolutionary process has provided a power of information that can address key questions such as Which immune molecules and pathways are conserved across species Which molecules and pathways are exploited by pathogens to cause disease What methods can be broadly used or readily adapted for wild immunology How does co infection and exposure to a dynamic environment affect immunity Section 1 addresses these questions through an evolutionary approach Laboratory mice have been instrumental in dissecting the nuances of the immune system The first paper investigates the immunology of wild mice and reviews how evolution and ecology sculpt differences in the immune responses of wild mice and laboratory mice A better understanding of wild immunology is required and sets the scene for the subsequent papers Although nature doesn't ask for a fee it is appropriate that nature is repaid in one form or another The translational theme of the second section incorporates papers that translate wild immunology back to nature But any non human non laboratory mouse research environment is hindered by a lack of research tools hence the underlying theme throughout the second section Physiological resource allocation is carefully balanced according to the most important needs of the body Tissue homeostasis can involve trade offs between energy requirements of the host and compensatory mechanisms to respond to infection The third section comprises a collection of papers that employ novel strategies to understand how the immune system is compensated under challenging physiological situations Technology has provided substantial advances in understanding the immune system at cellular and molecular levels The specificity of these tools e g monoclonal antibodies often limits the study to a specific species or strain A consequence of similar genetic sequences or cross reactivity is that the technology can be adapted to wild species Section 4 provides two examples of probing wild immunology by adapting technology developed for laboratory species

Exploring the Biopsychosocial Model in Irritable Bowel Syndrome Anna-Karin Norlin, 2020-10-09 Background Irritable bowel syndrome IBS is a common chronic relapsing and sometimes disabling symptombased disorder of gut brain interactions It has got a female predominance and occurs in all ages with a slight decrease among elderly The IBS symptoms can affect everyday work and social life in addition to an increased use of health care resources Most IBS patients are diagnosed and helped in primary health care PHC For many patients available treatment is insufficient It is known that both extraintestinal symptoms such as fatigue as well as comorbidities such as mood disorders chronic pain syndromes and insomnia contribute to the illness burden often to a larger extent than the gastrointestinal symptoms as such Even though the pathophysiology of IBS is not completely known it is now conceptualized as a disorder of altered brain gut interactions where a biopsychosocial model helps in understanding the symptoms Exposure to stress is thought to play an important role overall in the pathology of IBS as well as immune activation at least in a subgroup of patients This thesis aimed to gain deeper understanding of the biopsychosocial mechanisms of IBS and its associations with stress comorbidities and fatigue Methods Study I and II are based on the Twin cities IBS study population which included IBS patients and a control group of other patients without gastrointestinal complaints from ten PHC centres in the county of sterg tland Alongside demographics psychosocial questionnaires and a GI symptom diary it included analyses of hair cortisol concentrations HCC evaluated in study I and data on self rated health as well as diagnoses of comorbidities and number of health care contacts from a regional registry evaluated for study II Study III of this thesis is based on the Brain Gut study with a population of secondary care IBS patients and healthy controls HC It included self rated measures of fatigue impact on the daily life and early adverse life events as well as measures of circulating TNF and analyses of resting state functional magnetic resonance imaging of brain areas within a mesocorticolimbic circuitry of known relevance for fatigue Results Study I Perceived stress was higher in the IBS group while a considerable portion of IBS patients had low levels of HCC No association between perceived stress and HCC was seen in either group Study II IBS patients had lower self rated health and more PHC utilization than the non IBS patients

Good self rated health was independently associated with younger age higher sense of coherence and less gastrointestinal pain in both groups In IBS PHC utilization was associated with comorbidities in general and sleep disorders in particular Study III Fatigue impact on daily life and TNF were higher in IBS patients than in HC In IBS further an association was seen between fatigue impact on the one hand and TNF emotional abuse in childhood as well as altered mesocorticolimbic connectivity on the other Conclusion In conclusion this thesis firstly emphasizes that IBS patients in many ways including health outcomes consists a vulnerable group of PHC patients We add evidence for a possible suppression of the stress response system in a substantial portion of IBS patients Further comorbid sleep disorders seem to be particularly associated with excess PHC utilization in IBS and could possibly be a target for treatment interventions Moreover alongside treating gastrointestinal pain efforts to improve the individuals sense of coherence could be one way to achieve better self rated health in both IBS and non IBS patients Finally we suggest that fatigue in IBS is associated with immune activation central alterations and to some extent also previous childhood trauma IBS Irritable Bowel Syndrome r en vanlig kronisk tarmsjukdom med terkommande symtom av buksm rta tillsammans med ndrade avf ringsvanor Den drabbar cirka 10% av befolkningen och r vanligast hos kvinnor samt n got mindre vanlig hos ldre F r m nga inneb r IBS ett stort lidande f rs mrad livskvalitet och kad sjukv rdskonsumtion De flesta IBS patienter tas om hand i prim rv rden Nuvarande tillg nglig behandling r ofta otillr cklig En del IBS patienter har ocks andra symtom s som muskelsm rta och uttalad tr tthet som inte g r ver vid vila s kallad fatigue Det r ocks vanligt f rekommande med andra sjukdomstillst nd s som depression och andra sm rtsyndrom Det r visat att den typen av symtom och samsjuklighet m nga g nger r v rre f r IBS patienten n de faktiska magtarmsymptomen Numera tror man att symtomen vid IBS beror p st rningar i det msesidiga samspelet mellan tarm och hj rna men de bakomliggande mekanismerna r inte helt klarlagda F r att f rst IBS patientens symtom r en s kallad biopsykosocial f rklaringsmodell till stor hj lp d symtomen inte bara beror av biologiska mekanismer utan individens sociala milj samt psykologiska reaktioner spelar ocks stor roll Stress r centralt f r s v l utveckling av som symtom vid IBS och ven f r f rst elsen av den biopsykosociala f rklaringsmodellen generellt Tidigare forskning visar ocks att immunsystemet r p verkat hos tminstone en andel av IBS patienterna Syftet med den h r avhandlingen var att n en djupare f rst else av biopsykosociala mekanismer vid IBS med fokus p stress samsjuklighet och fatigue Delstudie I och II j mf rde IBS patienter och en kontrollgrupp med andra prim rv rdspatienter utan magtarmsymtom p 10 v rdcentraler i sterg tland Delstudie III unders kte IBS patienter p magtarmkliniken i Link ping i j mf relse med friska kontroller I delstudie I unders kte vi kortisol i h r niv er som ett m tt p hur stresshormonniv erna varit ver tid Trots att IBS patienterna som grupp beskrev en st rre sj lvupplevd stress n icke IBS patienterna hade en andel f rh llandevis l ga niv er av kortisol i h ret I delstudie II unders kte vi hur samsjuklighet i form av totalt antal registrerade diagnoser samt vissa specifika diagnoser och psykologiska aspekter samt magtarmsymtom p verkade sj lvskattad h lsa och prim rv rdskonsumtion hos IBS och icke IBS patienterna I b da grupperna var i sig själva starkt relaterade till grad av buksmärta oberoende associerat med betydande livskattad hälsa. Hos IBS patienterna fann vi närmast en femfaldigt ökad risk att ha många kontakter med primärvården vid samtidigt diagnostiserad smärtsjukdom. Den kopplingen sågs inte hos patienterna utan IBS. Däremot var det totala antalet diagnoser också en faktor av betydelse för vardagskonsumtionen i båda grupperna. I delstudie III belyste vi fatigue och eventuella kopplingar till nivåer av en proinflammatorisk signalmolekyl TNF samt till självrapporterade missfallssymtom under uppvaktnen hos IBS patienter och friska kontroller. Med funktionell magnetkameraundersökning av hjärnan undersökte vi också kopplingen mellan aktivitetsmönster i områden som relaterade till emotionella, kognitiva och motivationsrelaterade aspekter av fatigue hos IBS patienter och friska kontroller. Vi fann att IBS patienterna upplevde fyrfaldigt mer påverkan av fatigue på sina dagliga liv än kontrollerna. Den ökade trötthetsupplevelsen var också relaterad till högre nivåer av TNF i blodet hos IBS patienterna liksom i viss mån till missfallssymtom under uppvaktnen. Slutligen såg vi att högre grad av upplevd fatigue hos IBS patienterna ledde till minskad samtida aktivitet, konnektivitet i de undersökta hjärnområdena som representerade de motivationsrelaterade och kognitiva aspekterna av trötthetsupplevelsen. Någon liknande koppling mellan TNF och förändringar i hjärnaktiviteten sågs ej.

Sammanfattningsvis pekar våra resultat gällande samsjuklighet på livskattad hälsa, psykosociala faktorer samt fatigue på att IBS patienterna är en särskild patientgrupp som bör uppmärksammas. Våra resultat från delstudie I pekar vidare mot att stressaxeln kan vara uttrötad hos vissa IBS patienter. Enligt resultaten i delstudie II är känslan av sammanhang, jämnt buksmärta, faktorer som bör tas i beaktande för att om möjligt uppnå betydande livskattad hälsa både hos IBS och andra primärvårdspatienter. Vidare synes IBS patienternas förhållandevis stora vardagskonsumtion vara särskilt avhängig av samtidig smärtsjukdom vilket också det torde vara av betydelse i klinisk praxis och av intresse för framtida forskning. Delstudie III visar ett samband mellan fatigue som besymtom vid IBS och självklart barndomstrauman som möjlig immunaktivering. Vi fann även att IBS patienter som upplevde stor påverkan av fatigue på sina dagliga liv också hade en minskad konnektivitet mellan hjärnstrukturer av betydelse för kognition och motivation.
