Opportunities and Challenges of Interprofessional Collaboration and Education Jill Thistlethwaite, Peter Musaeus, Martina Mueller-Schilling, Sophie Schlosser, 2024-04-01 Interprofessional collaboration is essential in meeting today's health challenges which demand high flexibility and innovation Many health organizations including the World Health Organization WHO demand that interprofessional collaboration should be taught and learned globally Even so interprofessional education tools have not yet been widely implemented in the curricula of medical professions incl physicians nurses pharmacists physiotherapists etc this training usually takes place separately Collaboration is necessary in health professions education as it can allow professionals to increase their skills and help them achieve more than they would at an individual level Collaboration also allows for more open minded approaches when facing new ways of thinking When knowledge is shared healthcare employees are more encouraged to share their own ideas and concerns These achievements of interprofessionalism within health profession education not only benefit the student and employee but also optimize patient care and increase patient safety Productivity can also be increased and therefore reduce costs overall

Emerging Role of Lipids in Metabolism and Disease Marco Segatto,Valentina Pallottini,2021-04-01 Even though initially considered as a passive means for storing energy lipids are now regarded as multifaceted molecules with crucial structural and functional activities For instance some of them play essential roles as key components of cell membranes whereas others act as signaling molecules in the regulation of cell homeostasis In recent years lipid research has attracted increasing interest because of the involvement of this class of compounds in human health Indeed a plethora of pathological conditions are characterized by alterations in lipid metabolism such as cardiovascular diseases and brain disorders This Special Issue is a collection of papers from different experts in lipid research with the aim of providing new insights into the physiopathological involvement of lipids and their impact on human health This collection also demonstrates the usefulness of interdisciplinary approaches in the development of novel methods to study and manipulate lipid metabolism which may represent an attractive target for designing effective therapeutic strategies to counteract numerous pathologies
