

Magnetism Review 2020

What is magnetism? It is a force that can attract or repel objects. This force is caused by the movement of electric charges.

There are two types of magnets: permanent magnets and temporary magnets. Permanent magnets are made of materials that are always magnetic, such as iron, nickel, and cobalt. Temporary magnets are made of materials that are only magnetic when they are in the presence of a magnetic field, such as a piece of iron.

Magnets have two poles: a north pole and a south pole. Like poles repel each other, while opposite poles attract each other. This is why a north pole and a south pole will attract each other, while two north poles or two south poles will repel each other.

The strength of a magnetic field is measured in teslas. The Earth's magnetic field is very weak, with a strength of about 0.00005 teslas. However, some magnets can have a much stronger field, with strengths up to 10 teslas or more.

Magnetism is a very important part of our lives. It is used in many different ways, from the simple compass to the most advanced medical equipment. Without magnetism, our world would be a very different place.
