10. In general, every state has enacted and/or intends to enact laws that relate to the protection, preservation, and management of the environment. Examples are summarized below:

1. The first step in the process of the development of the system is the identification of the requirements. This is done by the system analyst, who is responsible for the system's performance, reliability, and security. The system analyst must also consider the system's cost and the time required to develop it.

2. The second step is the design of the system. This is done by the system designer, who is responsible for the system's architecture, data base, and user interface. The system designer must also consider the system's performance, reliability, and security.

3. The third step is the implementation of the system. This is done by the system programmer, who is responsible for the system's code and the system's data. The system programmer must also consider the system's performance, reliability, and security.

4. The fourth step is the testing of the system. This is done by the system tester, who is responsible for the system's performance, reliability, and security. The system tester must also consider the system's cost and the time required to develop it.

5. The fifth step is the maintenance of the system. This is done by the system maintainer, who is responsible for the system's performance, reliability, and security. The system maintainer must also consider the system's cost and the time required to develop it.

6. The sixth step is the evaluation of the system. This is done by the system evaluator, who is responsible for the system's performance, reliability, and security. The system evaluator must also consider the system's cost and the time required to develop it.

7. The seventh step is the documentation of the system. This is done by the system documenter, who is responsible for the system's performance, reliability, and security. The system documenter must also consider the system's cost and the time required to develop it.

8. The eighth step is the deployment of the system. This is done by the system deployer, who is responsible for the system's performance, reliability, and security. The system deployer must also consider the system's cost and the time required to develop it.

9. The ninth step is the operation of the system. This is done by the system operator, who is responsible for the system's performance, reliability, and security. The system operator must also consider the system's cost and the time required to develop it.

10. The tenth step is the termination of the system. This is done by the system terminator, who is responsible for the system's performance, reliability, and security. The system terminator must also consider the system's cost and the time required to develop it.
