Shaping Natural History and Settler Society Tanja Hammel, 2019-08-23 This book explores the life and work of Mary Elizabeth Barber, a British-born settler scientist who lived in the Cape during the nineteenth century. It provides a lens into a range of subjects within the history of knowledge and science, gender, and social history, postcolonial critical heritage, and archival studies. The book examines the international importance of the life and works of a marginalized scientist, the instrumentalisation of science to settlers' political concerns, and reveals the pivotal but largely silenced contribution of indigenous African experts. Including a variety of material, visual, and textual sources, this study explores how these artefacts are archived and displayed in museums and critically analyses their content and silences. The book traces Barber's legacy across three continents in collections and archives, offering insights into the politics of memory and history making At the same time it forges a nuanced argument incorporating study of the North and South the history of science and social history and the past and the present The Age of Scientific Naturalism Michael S Reidy,2015-07-28 The essays in this volume focus on the way Victorian Physicist John Tyndall and his correspondents developed their ideas through letters periodicals and journals and challenge assumptions about who gained authority and how they attained and defended their position within the scientific community The American Short-horn Herd Book ,1921 The Book of Knowledge Arthur Mee,1911 On Civil Procedure J.
