Louis Napoleacutleon Le Grand Litteacuterature:

Napoleon the Little Victor Hugo, 2019-11-25 In Napoleon the Little Victor Hugo delivers a scathing critique of Napoleon Bonaparte's legacy interweaving historical analysis with impassioned prose. This polemical work is both a biography and a vehement denunciation of what Hugo perceives as tyranny masquerading as heroism. Written in response to the rise of the authoritarian regime of Napoleon III whom Hugo vehemently opposed, the text employs a mix of poetic language and sharp rhetoric illustrating Hugo's mastery of style and his belief in the moral duty of literature. The book reflects the contemporary political unrest in France during the Second Empire where Hugo's own exile compels him to champion democracy and justice against despotism. Victor Hugo, a venerated figure in French literature, is known not only for his novels like Les Misérables and The Hunchback of Notre Dame but also for his passionate activism. His disdain for dictatorship and his advocacy for social change were both crystallized in his life experiences which included political exile and his deep commitment to human rights. These influences shaped his portrayal of Napoleon as a complex figure who despite his initial revolutionary promise transformed into a tyrant who suppressed freedom. Napoleon the Little is an essential read for anyone interested in the intersection of literature and politics. Hugo's insights challenge readers to reflect on the implications of power and the responsibility of individuals in the face of moral and ethical dilemmas. This book not only enriches the understanding of French history but also serves as a timeless reminder of the fragility of freedom, resonating powerfully with current global concerns.

Napoléon le Petit Victor Hugo, 1882 Napoleon the Little Victor Hugo, 2020-03-30 On Thursday December 20 1848 the Constituent Assembly being in session surrounded at that moment by an imposing display of troops heard the report of the Representative Waldeck Rousseau read on behalf of the committee which had been appointed to scrutinize the votes in the election of President of the Republic a report in which general attention had marked this phrase which embodied its whole idea: It is the seal of its inviolable authority which the nation by this admirable application of the fundamental law itself affixes on the Constitution to render it sacred and inviolable. Amid the profound silence of the nine hundred representatives of whom almost the entire number was assembled the President of the National Constituent Assembly Armand Marrast rose and said: In the name of the French people Whereas Citizen Charles Louis Napoleon Bonaparte born at Paris fulfils the conditions of eligibility prescribed by Article 44 of the Constitution Those who as representatives of the people received in trust for the people the oath of the 20th of December 1848 those especially who being twice invested with the confidence of the nation had as representatives heard that oath sworn and as legislators had seen it violated had assumed with their writ of summons two duties. The first of these was on the day when that oath should be violated to rise in their places to present their breasts to the enemy without calculating either his numbers or his strength to shelter with their bodies the sovereignty of the people and as a means to combat and cast down the usurper to grasp every sort of weapon from the law found in the code to the paving stone that one picks up in the street. The second duty was after having accepted the combat and all its chances to accept proscription and all its miseries to stand eternally erect before the traitor his oath in their hands to forget their personal sufferings their private sorrows their families dispersed and maltreated their fortunes destroyed their affections crushed their bleeding hearts to forget themselves and to feel thenceforth but a single wound the wound of France to cry aloud for justice never to suffer themselves to be appeased never to relent but to be implacable to seize the despicable perjurer crowned though he were if not with the hand of the law at least with the pincers of truth and to heat red hot in the fire of history all the letters of his oath and brand them on his face He who writes these lines is one of those who did not shrink on the 2nd of December from the utmost effort to accomplish the first of these two great duties in publishing this book he performs the second
