versus the hazard of bleeding which frequently represents a serious concern Thus the management of this category of patients raises multiple problems as the physician must choose the correct drug and dose intensity and duration of the anticoagulant antithrombotic therapy The risk or recurrence is often difficult to appreciate and frequently requires elaborated laboratory examinations sometimes even genetic testing The development of new diagnostic therapeutic methods and protocols is needed to facilitate a precocious diagnosis which allows an easier and more accurate quantification of the risk of recurrent thrombosis while also decreasing the bleeding hazard This new insight into the process of haemostasis and thrombosis requires clinical imagistic and genetical assessments and therapeutic approaches Machine learning may prove its utility in helping the physicians to establish suitable protocols Along with data analysis these algorithms may assist the physicians in the diagnosis and treatment of patients with cardiovascular pathology especially of those with coagulopathies Hemodynamic analysis facilitates a personalised diagnosis and individualised treatment of thrombosis The patient specific hemodynamic modelling is enabled by 3D reconstruction of the blood vessels from the medical imagistic along with invasive and non invasive measurements of flow patterns This Research Topic focuses on original articles reviews meta analysis and case reports referring to groundbreaking research regarding thrombosis and haemostasis Improving aneurysmal Subarachnoid hemorrhage management, what's new? Massimo Del Sette,Emanuela Crobeddu,Marcello Egidi,Luca Valvassori,2024-08-12 Aneurysmal subarachnoid hemorrhage aSAH still represents a significant cause of morbidity and mortality around the world and its outcome can be dramatically impacted by early and expert care SAH treatment comprises early neurosurgical or endovascular treatment of the ruptured aneurysm strategies to reduce further neurological injury and managing systemic complications In fact management of aSAH is a multidisciplinary issue and the current state of knowledge is in rapid evolution Nevertheless the guidelines are not up to date The last American aSAH guidelines were issued in 2012 and covered literature up until May 2010 and in 2013 members of the Guidelines Committee of the European Stroke Organization reviewed them from a European standpoint Since then considerable advances have been made in diagnostic methods surgical and endovascular techniques and clinical management paradigms Subarachnoid hemorrhage is still a relevant health problem and although its incidence varies among populations a quarter of patients affected by aSAH die and approximately half of survivors are left with some persistent neurological deficit Taking into account the fact that the prognosis of aSAH patients is affected by multiple factors and that some of them can be influenced by therapeutic strategies and management procedures we believe that there is a need to reassess which interventions provide the greatest benefit to patients The 5 Minute Urology Consult Leonard G.
