entrepreneurial hero of Don Anderson's trilogy Deadly Calm, Seas the Day, and Golden Results employs a different method. Successful and wealthy due to his skills and vision in the world of technology, Rogers seeks to give back by addressing the global issues of the day. Rogers already has had a great impact on the issues of population control, drug running, illegal immigration, and unsustainable fishing practices. In Golden Results, Rogers turns his attention to energy. Combining both realism and idealism, Rogers cuts through the usual bureaucratic red tape while playing by a set of rules that will address a level field. Not everyone in the story does. Political intrigue includes red tape designed to trip up Rogers and to marginalize his ideas and vision, while powerful cartel leaders seeing Rogers' energy project as a threat to their drug routes play by a different set of rules, trailing death behind them as they try to kill the project. The venue is Baja California and the ocean, with the array of fish that live within. Whether the challenger takes on dorado, speedy tuna, strong trevally, or spectacular tarpon in native waters, or monstrous billfish prowling the oceans with weapon unsheathed, the chance of success or failure looms at any time. So it is when Stan fishes, so it is when Stan addresses a global problem. A strong sense of conservation winds through the story like a line pulled from the reel by a powerful fish, yet linked to a fisherman who knows and values the integrity of the sea and its inhabitants.

Life in Hawaii Titus Coan, 1882 Thunder Rides a Black Horse Claire R. Farrer, 2010-09-02

Thunder's focus on the ways in which old myths and legends inform actions and beliefs on a contemporary Indian reservation in the American Southwest has established it as an ideal supplement for introductory classes in Native American studies, anthropology, crosscultural religion, folklore, and discourse analysis. As one reviewer states, "Knowledge and understanding about human cultural variation and possibilities just flows." The current edition includes valuable updates of reservation life and the author's fictive family members at Mescalero. The compelling four-day and four-night Mescalero Apache girls' puberty ceremonial remains the backdrop of Farrer's interpretive discussion of time and the mythic present. The oral traditions and instructions given to her by the late Bernard, Second, her longtime Apache teacher, provide insight into the importance of narrative not just in ceremonials but also in daily life. Farrer neither romanticizes nor patronizes the Apachean people who are presented as people with foibles as well as possessing much worthy of admiration. The Third Edition incorporates a fully developed concluding chapter, "Returning," and furnishes thoughtful end-of-chapter questions to prompt readers to explore their own reactions to the text.

On Becoming a Bostonian Baraska Baskad, 2006-06-09 This short story book is divided into two parts the first and longer part of which is about growing up in the baby boomer generation and coming of age in the City of Boston whilst the second part is about the city itself its history character personality and nuances Other than this division chronological sequence is only incidental so the story reading can be done without having to be overly concerned with paying attention to special sequence as each story while related to the theme has its own stand alone merit while at the same time still being part of a compilation Each tale is a slice of the pie or rather a sliver of the pie of the city to get a feel for it and that is what this book is all about a nostalgic reminiscent short story book of tales set in the City of Boston as well as in the second part a guide for the newcomer as to what to expect in a city of which so much has been written it can be difficult to separate fact from fiction Boston the untold story What is the city all about What was it like coming of age in the Boston baby boomer generation What is a Bostonian What makes a Bostonian tick Baraska tackles these questions head on as well as a myriad of others as a lifelong resident Bostonian and takes you inside Americas oldest and most historical walking city With his hands on the pulse of the city at a major metropolitan newspaper Baraska takes you inside this hub city to fill in the blanks as he unveils the nuances of this the Capital Bay City of New England and whilst the many guides on Boston do a fine job Baraska states they may not tell you when the red light turns green GO immediately before the horns start to blow or how to really get the the bargains at Filenes Basement What NOT to ask a Bostonian Baraska advises as well as what a resident does like to commiserate about How NOT to act in Boston to avoid native disapprobation What NEVER to do in Boston if you dont want to end up like General George Armstrong Custer where to sit at Fenway Park and who sells the best hot dogs From coming of age in a scholarly city to looking at a New Yorkers view of Beantown Baraska not only raises the questions but gives the answer unabashedly e g When queried about why the Pilgrims came here in the first place and landed at Plymouth

Rock in 1620 Baraska counterpunches with his own query that the Pilgrims first destination was Holland before coming here couldnt they get along there either he muses And was it not these same Puritans who came here for a purer Anglican religion hence the name and religious freedom who publicly executed Mary Dyer on the Boston Common because she was of the different Quaker religion As for the Boston Tea Party Baraska not incidentally suggests the 342 crates of British Tea dumped into Boston Harbor on the evening of December 16 1773 may have been driven more by economic concerns than patriotism since the imported British product was underselling the tea produced in the Colonies And certainly blaming it on the Indians was less than a noble deed for the defiant colonists Ben Franklin in any case Baraska points out wasnt impressed and offered to assuage the enraged British Crown by paying them back for the cost of the tea dumped into the harbor And whilst Baraska praises the brilliant copper and silversmith he was his copper was used in the making of the State House Dome he does raise the specter of possibility that Paul Reveres famous ride on that fateful evening of April 18 1775 may have been driven in part as a desire for a break in the baby sitting of his 16 children as well as by Colonial Militia patriotic concerns
