Legislating the War on Terror Benjamin Wittes, 2010-02-01 A Brookings Institution Press and the Hoover Institution and the Georgetown Center on National Security and the Law publication The events of September 11 and subsequent American actions irrevocably changed the political military and legal landscapes of U S national security Predictably many of the changes were controversial and abuses were revealed The United States needs a legal framework that reflects these new realities Legislating the War on Terror presents an agenda for reforming the statutory law governing this new battle balancing the need for security the rule of law and the constitutional rights that protect American freedom The authors span a considerable swath of the political spectrum but they all believe that Congress has a significant role to play in shaping the contours of America's confrontation with terrorism Their essays are organized around the major tools that the United States has deployed against al Qaeda as well as the legal problems that have arisen as a result Mark Gitenstein compares U S and foreign legal standards for detention interrogation and surveillance Matthew Waxman studies possible strategic purposes for detaining people without charging them while Jack Goldsmith imagines a system of judicially reviewed law of war detention Robert Chesney suggests ways to refine U S criminal law into a more powerful instrument against terrorism Robert Litt and Wells C Bennett suggest the creation of a specialized bar of defense lawyers for trying accused terrorists in criminal courts David Martin explores the relationship between immigration law and counterterrorism David Kris lays out his proposals for modernizing the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act Justin Florence and Matthew Gerke outline possible reforms of civil justice procedures in national security litigation Benjamin Wittes and Stuart Taylor Jr investigate ways to improve interrogation laws while clarifying the definition and limits of torture Kenneth Anderson argues for the protection of

What Drives Interest Rate Spreads in Pacific Island Countries? An Empirical Investigation Mr. Fazurin Jamaludin, Mr. Vladimir Klyuev, Anuk Serechetapongse, 2015-05-04 Growth has been sluggish in Pacific island countries PICs High cost of credit is likely one of the reasons While the small scale geographic dispersion and vulnerability to shocks increase the cost and risk of credit in this country group there is considerable variability in interest rate spreads both across countries and over time This paper examines the determinants of lending rates and interest rate spreads in a panel of six PICs extending the literature that was largely descriptive in nature or focused on a single country Our results are in line with economic theory We find that the size of the economy is negatively correlated with spreads confirming the importance of scale Inflation appears to have only marginal impact on spreads High loan loss provisions and nonperforming loans increase the cost of credit So does banking system concentration Higher institutional quality is associated with lower spreads
