Ackerman, Kimberly D. Jones, Christopher A. Jennings, 2003 From the fall of 1980 to the present the Supreme Court has handed down over 60 decisions on the issues of church and state more than in any previous comparable period In many of its decisions the Court has been sharply split with the Justices vigorously arguing their various viewpoints But the changes in the Court's composition have had a demonstrable effect The Court has substantially narrowed the scope of the free exercise clause as a constraint on government action and has overturned a number of its prior establishment clause rulings On both clauses the Court's interpretations are now giving government much more discretion to take actions that affect religious institutions and practices Nonetheless the Court is sharply divided on how to interpret and apply both the free exercise clause and the establishment clause and the outcome of particular cases is often unpredictable The period since 1980 has been a profoundly important time for the law of church and state in the Supreme Court The arguments both on and off the Court about the proper relationship of government and religion have been spirited and extensive and the Court has issued dozens of rulings on specific issues This book summarises the doctrinal debates and shifts on the religion clauses that have occurred on the court during this period It summarises and examines as well the legal effect of each of the decisions the Court has handed down concerning church and state since 1980 An Appendix lists each of the Justices voted on the decisions

Reconciling Opposites W. Royce Clark, 2022-02-04 The American justice system was founded on the idea of majority rule but in a democracy this is achievable only if the majority has the interests of the whole at heart Since the days of America's founding white Christian males created laws from their standpoint as the majority leading them to exercise power in a largely majoritarian way rather than upholding the interests of all citizens The nation has not realized its stated ideals of equality of liberty opportunity and justice for all As a solution W Royce Clark formulates a non majoritarian ethic based not on any majority but on a universal instinct the combination of Albert Schweitzer's will to live and Friedrich Nietzsche's will to power along with democratic principles articulated by John Rawls and James Madison which would represent all citizens
