Gschwantner, Mark Lawrence, Ronald E. McRoberts, 2009-12-02 Forest inventories throughout the world have evolved gradually over time. The content as well as the concepts and definitions employed are constantly adapted to the users' needs. Advanced inventory systems have been established in many countries within Europe as well as outside Europe as a result of development work spanning several decades in some cases more than 100 years. With continuously increasing international agreements and commitments, the need for information has also grown drastically and reporting requests have become more frequent and the content of the reports wider. Some of the agreements made at the international level have direct impacts on national economies and international decisions e.g. the Kyoto Protocol. Thus it is of utmost importance that the forest information supplied is collected and analysed using sound scientific principles and that the information from different countries is comparable. European National Forest Inventory (ENFI) teams gathered in Vienna in 2003 to discuss the new challenges and the measures needed to get data users to take full advantage of existing NFIs. As a result, the European National Forest Inventory Network (ENFIN), a network of NFIs, was established. The ENFIN members decided to apply for funding for meetings and collaborative activities. COST (European Cooperation in Science and Technology) provided the necessary financial means for the realization of the program.

Managing Forest Ecosystems: The Challenge of Climate Change Felipe Bravo, Valerie LeMay, Robert Jandl, 2017-04-03 Climate change shaped the political agenda during the last decade with three issues as hot topics commonly making the headlines: carbon budgets, impact and mitigation of climate change. Given the significant role that forests play in the climate system as sources, sinks and through carbon trading, this book updates the current scientific evidence on the relationships between climate, forest resources and forest management practices around the world. By including the forest scientists' expertise from around the world, the book presents and updates a depth analysis of the current knowledge and a series of case studies focused on the biological and the economic impacts of climate change in forest ecosystems in Africa, Asia, Europe and North and South America. The book will form a valuable resource for researchers and advanced students dealing with sustainable forestry, climate change issues and the effects of climate change on natural resource management.

Agroforestry for Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services Martin Kaonga, 2012-04-04 Agroforestry has great potential for reducing deforestation and forest degradation, providing rural livelihoods and habitats for species outside formally protected land and alleviating resource use pressure on conservation areas. However, widespread adoption of agroforestry innovations is still constrained by a myriad of factors including design features of candidate agroforestry innovations, perceived needs, policies, availability and distribution of factors of production and perception of risks. Understanding the science and factors that regulate the adoption of agroforestry and how they impact the implementation of agroforestry is vitally important. Agroforestry for Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services: Science and Practice examines design features and management practices of some agroforestry practices and their impact on biodiversity and the ecosystem services it delivers. It also identifies policy issues for facilitating adoption of desirable agroforestry practices and gradual diminution of undesirable policies Achieving sustainable urban agriculture Prof Johannes S. C.
