South Africa's Education System Mr. Montfort Mlachila, Thalefang Moeletsi, 2019-03-01 While South Africa has made significant improvements in basic and tertiary education enrollment the country still suffers from significant challenges in the quality of educational achievement by almost any international metric The paper finds that money is clearly not the main issue since the South Africa's education budget is comparable to OECD countries as a percent of GDP and exceeds that of most peer sub-Saharan African countries in per capita terms The main explanatory factors are complex and multifaceted and

are associated with insufficient subject knowledge of some teachers history race language geographic location and socio economic status Low educational achievement contributes to low productivity growth and high levels of poverty unemployment and inequality Drawing on the literature the paper sketches some policy considerations to guide the debate on what works and what does not

The Struggle to Reform Our Colleges Derek Bok, 2017-09-05 Why efforts to improve American higher educational attainment haven t worked and where to go from here During the first decade of this century many commentators predicted that American higher education was about to undergo major changes that would be brought about under the stimulus of online learning and other technological advances Toward the end of the decade the president of the United States declared that America would regain its historic lead in the education of its workforce within the next ten years through a huge increase in the number of students earning quality college degrees Several years have elapsed since these pronouncements were made yet the rate of progress has increased very little if at all in the number of college graduates or the nature and quality of the education they receive In The Struggle to Reform Our Colleges Derek Bok seeks to explain why so little change has occurred by analyzing the response of America s colleges the influence of students employers foundations accrediting organizations and government officials and the impact of market
