Globalization, International Education Policy and Local Policy Formation Carolyn A. Brown, 2014-10-13 This edited volume focuses on how international education policy set by international policymakers and donors influences local education policy in developing countries The book's primary purpose is to give voice to scholars from developing countries and regions around the world by inviting them to explore how the international policy invariably linked to international aid influences education policy formation and implementation in their country or region and how this influence does or does not meet the local cultural social economic and political needs A relatively recent and small body of research and commentary supports a discourse that questions how well international education policy mandates such as Education For All serve the needs of developing countries The intent of this book is to advance this discourse by giving voice to local scholars who observe and study the donor process The book will be divided into two sections the first section will set the stage for the discussions in the second section by providing theoretical and historical context for international education policy As a framework for understanding the book adopts the position that international policy does not have either the ability or the intent to serve the widely diverse needs of development around the world International education policy has been formed historically by wealthy nations and agencies dominated by Western theoretical paradigms In recent years donor countries have made an effort to collaborate with developing countries in developing international education policy goals however this collaboration has been limited Following establishment of the context of international education policy section II of the book provides a forum for scholars from around the world to openly discuss and critique the impact of international policy on education in their country or region

Rocha Fernandes, António M. Rodrigues, Carlos Alberto Rosa Ferreira, 2019-05-21

This book analyzes the main Information and Communication Technologies ICT used in science education and the main theoretical approaches that support science education mediated by ICT in order to show how digital technologies can be employed in Inquiry Based Science Education It presents the results of a comprehensive review of studies focusing both on the use and effects of digital technologies in science education and on the different theoretical approaches that support the use of ICTs in science teaching By doing so the book provides a useful summary of the current research in the field and a strong analysis of its limitations It concludes that there are few studies that report strategies and didactics for the practical use of ICT in science classes and that the use of ICT in science education can't be seen as an isolated action without a theoretical basis to support it Based on these conclusions the volume identifies the main ICTs used in inquiry activities the main steps in inquiry activities used in science education and their approaches to the use of ICT It shows that the use of ICT in Inquiry Based Science Education allows students to develop more active work styles improved attitudes towards science better conceptual and theoretical understanding improved reasoning better modelling capabilities and improved teamwork along with improvements in other abilities Using ICT in Inquiry Based Science Education will be a valuable resource for science teachers and science teacher educators looking for an introductory text that presents an overview of the scientific research analyzing the implementation of digital technologies in science teaching and that provides useful insights to all educators interested in using digital technologies to introduce their students in the world of scientific inquiry and research Textbook Policies in Asia Andy Smart, Shanti Jagannathan, 2018-12-01
