Environmental Information in Instructions for Use of Consumer Products Ari Nissinen, 2005-03-11 The European Union has highlighted the issue of environmentally sound use of products in the context of Integrated Product Policy IPP. Accordingly, consumers should have easy access to understandable, relevant, and credible environmental information. Information about product characteristics is available in different forms and sources, but in many cases relevant environmental information is not available on the product itself. The study described in this report was initiated in order to produce information on the state of user instructions regarding environmental information. User manuals of passenger cars and refrigerators were focused on examining the advice which could diminish the harmful environmental effects of the use of these products. Other studied products included such durable products as textiles and furniture as well as such consumables as cleaning chemicals and recyclable paper products. The study raised many ideas about actions that could promote the status and eco development of instructions for use.

FM'99 - Formal Methods Jeannette M. Wing, Jim Woodcock, Jim Davies, 2003-07-31. Formal methods are coming of age. Mathematical techniques and tools are now regarded as an important part of the development process in a wide range of industrial and governmental organisations. A transfer of technology into the mainstream of systems development is slowly but surely taking place. FM'99, the First World Congress on Formal Methods in the Development of Computing Systems, is a result and a measure of this new-found maturity. It brings an impressive array of industrial and applications-oriented papers that show how formal methods have been used to tackle real problems. These proceedings are a record of the technical symposium of FM'99, alongside the papers describing applications of formal methods, you will find technical reports, papers, and abstracts detailing new advances in formal techniques from mathematical foundations to practical tools. The World Congress is the successor to the four Formal Methods Europe Symposia, which in turn succeeded the four VDM Europe Symposia. This session reflects an increasing openness within the international community of researchers and practitioners: papers were submitted covering a wide variety of formal methods and application areas. The programme committee reflects the Congress's international nature, with a membership of 84 leading researchers from 38 different countries. The committee was divided into 19 tracks, each with its own chair to oversee the reviewing process. Our collective task was a difficult one: there were 259 high-quality submissions from 35 different countries.
