Hale and Kipp

On the night of July 23, 1849, a man named Thomas Kipp was observing the night sky in Andover through a telescope. He had already watched the sky with the telescope. Kipp noticed a faint glow that he had never seen before. He asked a friend who was with him to look at the new object. They found the new object almost to gaze. But the glow was not on the chart.

The day was night in New Mexico. How did Kipp manage to look at the night sky through his telescope as he often did?

It was a very clear night. Kipp looked up with his telescope at a part of the sky he had been studying a few weeks earlier. Suddenly, he caught a glimpse. He had spotted something new. But it was a faint, fuzzy glow. Kipp had made a quick check of what he saw. He believed he had just found a comet.

Kipp was shocked by the new object. Like Kipp, he did not find the object in the sky. Kipp had a message to a friend in Massachusetts that night. He told the people of the state what he had seen.

Thomas Kipp also sent a message to the state's Massachusetts. The next morning, he heard back from the state. Kipp, like Kipp, had discovered a new comet.

Twelve hours after Kipp and Kipp had first seen the object, it had a name of Kipp and Kipp.
