Dowling, 2001 In August 2000 a Festschrift was held at the Marine Biological Laboratory Woods Hole Massachusetts to celebrate the career of Professor John E Dowling on the occasion of his 65th birthday Containing contributions from more than 50 of John s colleagues representing a Who s Who of the vision research community this work not only provides a memento of the occasion but will hopefully serve as a basic reference for future researchers in retinal biology The volume is divided somewhat arbitrarily into seven areas of retinal research containing chapters that present in some cases a broad overview of a particular topic and in others an account of current research and studies in progress These chapters exemplify the richness diversity and excitement of contemporary retinal research They also remind us of how much more needs to be done before we understand fully the interrelationship between retinal neurons the complex interactions between neurons and glial cells and the mechanisms that govern retinal development A final chapter contributed by John Dowling provides an overview of past accomplishments and offers some future perspectives on retinal research in the 21st century Mutualism Judith L. Bronstein, 2015 Mutualisms interactions between two species that benefit both of them have long captured the public imagination Their influence transcends levels of biological organization from cells to populations communities and ecosystems Mutualistic symbioses were crucial to the origin of eukaryotic cells and perhaps to the invasion of land Mutualisms occur in every terrestrial and aquatic habitat indeed ecologists now believe that almost every species on Earth is involved directly or indirectly in one or more of these interactions Mutualisms are essential to the reproduction and survival of virtually all organisms as well as to nutrient cycles in ecosystems Furthermore the key ecosystem services that mutualists provide mean that they are increasingly being considered as conservation priorities ironically at the same time as the acute risks to their ecological and evolutionary persistence are increasingly being identified This volume the first general work on mutualism to appear in almost thirty years provides a detailed and conceptually oriented overview of the subject Focusing on a range of ecological and evolutionary aspects over different scales from individual to ecosystem the chapters in this book provide expert coverage of our current understanding of mutualism whilst highlighting the most important questions that remain to be answered In bringing together a diverse team of expert contributors this novel text captures the excitement of a dynamic field that will help to define its future research agenda
