Organizational Report Cards William T. Gormley Jr., David L. Weimer, 1999-03 In recent years consumers professional organizations government officials and third party payers have become increasingly concerned about how to assess the quality of the services provided by organizations in both the private and the public sectors One new approach is the organizational report card which compares the performance of organizations such as public schools colleges hospitals and HMOs This book offers the first comprehensive study of such instruments It discusses the circumstances under which they are desirable alternatives to other policy instruments such as regulation how they should be designed who is likely to use them and for what purpose and what role if any government should have in their creation Informed by cases drawn from education health and other policy areas this book develops a conceptual framework for analyzing these issues It explores the tradeoffs in measuring performance the methods of communicating results effectively to mass and elite audiences and the ways in which organizations respond to the data gathered Department of Veterans Affairs, Veterans Health Administration, Hospital Report Card to the Appropriations Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives Barry Leonard, 2009-12 In an effort to provide a snapshot of the quality of care provided at VA health care facilities this report includes information about waiting times staffing level infection rates surgical volumes quality measures patient satisfaction service availability and complexity accreditation status and patient safety The data in this report have been drawn from multiple sources across the Veterans Health Admin VHA Overall VHA facilities provide high quality outpatient and inpatient medical care when compared to national external composite benchmarks developed by VHA Two areas where VHA is seeking to improve VA health care is for women and minority veterans Tables

The Learning Healthcare System Institute of Medicine, Roundtable on Evidence-Based Medicine, 2007-06-01 As our nation enters a new era of medical science that offers the real prospect of personalized health care we will be confronted by an increasingly complex array of health care options and decisions The Learning Healthcare System considers how health care is structured to develop and to apply evidence from health profession training and infrastructure development to advances in research methodology patient engagement payment schemes and measurement and highlights opportunities for the creation of a sustainable learning health care system that gets the right care to people when they need it and then captures the results for improvement This book will be of primary interest to hospital and insurance industry administrators health care providers those who train and educate health workers researchers and policymakers The Learning Healthcare System is the first in a series that will focus on issues important to improving the development and application of evidence in health care decision making The Roundtable on Evidence Based Medicine serves as a neutral venue for cooperative work among key stakeholders
