Surviving and Thriving: How Crops Perceive and Respond to Temperature Stress Zemin Wang, Yi Wang, Darren Wong, 2025-01-27 The dramatic temperature fluctuations spurred by climate change inhibit plant growth and threaten crop productivity Unraveling how plants defend themselves against temperature stress induced cellular impairment is not only a crucial fundamental issue but is also of critical importance for agricultural sustainability and food security Improving crop tolerance to abiotic stress conditions requires a deep understanding of the response of plants to changes in their environment This response is dependent on early and late signal transduction events that involve important signaling molecules such as reactive oxygen species ROS sugars different plant hormones and other signaling molecules It is the integration of these signaling events mediated by an interplay between ROS sugars and different plant hormones that orchestrates the plant response to abiotic stress and drive changes in transcriptomic metabolic and proteomic networks that lead to plant acclimation and survival This Research Topic explores the crops balancing growth and temperature stress responses and how these findings can be used to increase crop quality and yield potential
