Introducing Urban Design Interventions And Responses Introduction To Planning Series:

Introducing Urban Design Clara Greed, Marion Roberts, 2016-01-29 Introducing Urban Design Interventions and Responses is a new departure in the town planning series under the editorship of Clara Greed. The dynamic new subject and profession of urban design straddles the fields of town planning, architecture, landscape architecture and transport planning. This book recognises that a key feature of modern urban design practice is the ability to integrate a concern with the visual and aesthetic aspects of urban form with a strong social awareness of the need of user groups plus a sensitivity to wider environmental and sustainability issues. In this it continues the themes already introduced in earlier volumes such as the changing nature of the profession, social problems and the means of implementing policy. Written by a team of eminent urban designers, architects and planners under the joint editorship of Clara Greed and Marion Roberts, the book introduces the reader to the subject through a discussion of current issues, approaches and user responses. Introducing Urban Design Interventions and Responses is an ideal resource for undergraduate courses in town planning, architecture, landscape architecture, estate management and housing studies. It is also suitable as an introductory text for first year diploma and masters programmes in urban design and suitable for RTPI, RICS, CIOH, CIOB, ASI, ISVA and RIBA courses and will be of interest to professional practitioners in the urban design field.

Geographical Information and Planning John Stillwell, Stan Geertman, Stan Openshaw, 2013-03-09. The 1990s have seen some remarkable changes in geographical information (GI) provision and computer technology that have impacted on many of the activities that constitute planning in all its different forms. However, relatively few texts in the field of geographical information systems (GIS) and planning have been published since Henk Scholten and John Stillwell edited Geographical Information Systems for Urban and Regional Planning in 1990. This volume seeks to redress the balance by showing how GI of various types is being used in urban, physical, environmental, socio-economic and business planning contexts at local, regional and national scales, with the assistance of GIS and modelling methods, and how the uses of GI and GI technologies have evolved over the last decade. During this period, a number of meetings took place in Europe in different locations, organised initially by European

Geographical Information Systems EGIS 1990 94 and more recently by the Joint European Conference and Exhibition JEC on Geographical Information 1995 97 These meetings brought together members of the GI community from across the world to discuss GI research and GIS applications One of the Special Interest Groups associated with the JEC gatherings was that on Geographical Information and Planning and several of the contributions in this book have their origins in papers presented to the group's meetings

Social Sustainability in Urban Areas Tony Manzi, Karen Lucas, Tony Lloyd Jones, Judith Allen, 2010-08-12 This groundbreaking new volume on social sustainability offers both critique and creative solutions It challenges the conventional wisdoms of social sustainability and presents practical examples of projects that will help practitioners to think carefully and innovatively about the situations they are addressing The book consists of original contributions from academics working in the fields of urban planning housing regeneration transport and international sustainable development Drawing on case study research gathered in the UK Europe and Africa it adopts an original interdisciplinary approach to both theory and practice illustrating the challenges and opportunities facing policy makers and practitioners attempting to develop manage and maintain sustainable communities The authors argue that the dominant approach of how to do small scale social sustainability fails to locate it within broader social processes Ignoring the context not only sustains but also actively reproduces wider inequalities The book presents a new more coherent and more complete approach to issues of social sustainability in urban areas The book approaches current urban policy discourses in three different ways represented by three sections firstly focusing on small places within the urban fabric secondly addressing the whole urban fabric by examining whether changing urban living and working patterns The third section explores some of the ways that funding can be secured to achieve the aims of social sustainability and the social planning associated with it

Designing Sustainable Cities Rachel Cooper, Graeme Evans, Christopher Boyko, 2009-11-24 This book offers practical solutions to achieving sustainable urban design and development and helps designers communicate these solutions effectively to planners developers and policy makers Addressing sustainability issues in relation to the design and planning of the urban environment is a complex multi disciplinary issue and solutions never arrive from a single perspective The authors use design as a facilitating factor to consider when and by whom decisions that contribute to sustainability are made and through three major city centre case studies London Manchester and Sheffield they consider social environmental and economic factors and examine their relationship to the decision making process Designing Sustainable Cities begins by identifying the key processes and lead decision makers The following chapters develop an understanding of the dimensions of sustainability presenting the tools by which the dimensions can be analysed Later chapters illustrate the trade offs and the relationships between the dimensions of sustainability with case study examples as well as the use of IT in making design decisions. Finally, the book makes recommendations for future approaches to the design development and on-going management of urban environments. Designing Sustainable Cities covers latest research data on the urban environment and the interaction between social, economic, and environmental issues; methods of understanding the context in which urban design takes place; guidance on the codes of practice; process maps to help understand the context; make trade-offs and develop design solutions that allow for change; methods for testing the consequences of design proposals and monitoring outcomes. Post Proceedings of the World Conference on Universal Design Yeunsook Lee, 2001 Nature City Babalis, Dimitra, 2022-12-30 This volume is the expression of seven years' scientific findings built within the INTEGRO UAD International Meetings convened at the University of Florence, while the development of the collection of chapters reflects interpretations of the most pressing issues and necessary perspectives required to frame changes in planning and design. In putting together this collection, it is aimed to better understand questions, prospects, reflections, and rules on improving urban strategies and tactics in balancing the needs of nature and the built form to deliver a place. Discussions, debates, and stated considerations can now inspire to give a formal and comprehensive international attention to the transformation of urban heritage, including ecological and sustainable design knowledge. The Urban Design Reader Michael Larice, Elizabeth Macdonald, 2013-05-07 The second edition of The Urban Design Reader draws together the very best of classic and contemporary writings to illuminate and expand the theory and practice of urban design. Nearly 50 generous selections include seminal contributions from Howard Le Corbusier, Lynch, and Jacobs to more recent writings by Waldheim, Koolhaas, and Sorkin. Following the widespread success of the first edition of The Urban Design Reader, this updated edition continues to provide the most important historical material of the urban design field but also introduces new topics and selections that address the myriad challenges facing designers today. The six-part structure of the second edition guides the reader through the history, theory, and practice of urban design. The reader is initially introduced to those classic writings that provide the historical precedents for city-making into the twentieth century. Part Two introduces the voices and ideas that were instrumental in establishing the foundations of the urban design field from the late 1950s up to the mid 1990s. These authors present a critical reading of the design professions and offer an alternative urban design agenda focused on vital and lively places. The authors in Part Three provide a range of urban design rationales and strategies for reinforcing local physical identity and the creation of memorable places. These selections are largely describing the outcomes of mid-century urban design and voicing concerns over the placeless quality of contemporary urbanism. The fourth part of the Reader explores key issues in urban design and development. Ideas about sprawl, density, community health, public space, and everyday life are the primary focus here. Several new selections in this part of the book also highlight important international development trends in the Middle East and China. Part Five presents environmental challenges faced by the built environment professions today, including recent material on landscape urbanism, sustainability, and urban resiliency The final part examines professional practice and current debates in the field where urban designers work what they do their roles their fields of knowledge and their educational development The section concludes with several position pieces and debates on the future of urban design practice This book provides an essential resource for students and practitioners of urban design drawing together important but widely dispersed writings Part and section introductions are provided to assist readers in understanding the context of the material summary messages impacts of the writing and how they fit into the larger picture of the urban design field
