Esperdy argues that these updated storefronts served a range of complex purposes such as stimulating public consumption extending the New Deal's influence reviving a stagnant construction industry and introducing European modernist design to the everyday landscape She goes on to show that these diverse roles are inseparable woven together not only by the crisis of the Depression but also by the pressures of burgeoning consumerism As the decade's two major cultural forces Esperdy concludes consumerism and the Depression transformed the storefront from a seemingly insignificant element of the built environment into a potent site for the physical and rhetorical staging of recovery and progress
