My Discovery Of England:

My Discovery of England Stephen Leacock, 1922 My Discovery of England is a classic humorous England travelogue by the great Canadian humorist Stephen Leacock. Mr Leacock is one of those rare individuals who can see a humorous side in everything and make others see it too. That is why this story of his tour through England is so delightfully refreshing. Stephen P H Butler Leacock FRSC 30 December 1869 28 March 1944 was a Canadian teacher, political scientist, writer, and humorist. Between the years 1915 and 1925 he was the best known English speaking humorist in the world. 1 He is known for his light humour along with criticisms of people's follies. 2 The Stephen Leacock Memorial Medal for Humour was named in his honour. Stephen Leacock was born in Swanmore, a village near Southampton in southern England. He was the third of the eleven children born to Walter Peter Leacock b 1834 who was born and grew up at Oak Hill on the Isle of Wight, an estate that his grandfather had purchased after returning from Madeira where his family had made a fortune out of plantations and Leacock's Madeira wine founded in 1760. Stephen's mother Agnes was born at Soberton, the youngest daughter by his second wife Caroline Linton Palmer of the Rev Stephen Butler of Bury Lodge, the Butler estate that overlooked the village of Hambledon, Hampshire. Stephen Butler, for whom Leacock was named, was the maternal grandson of Admiral James Richard Dacres and a brother of Sir Thomas Dacres Butler Usher of the Black Rod. Leacock's mother was the half sister of Major Thomas Adair Butler who won the Victoria Cross at the siege and capture of Lucknow. Peter's father Thomas Murdock Leacock J P had already conceived plans eventually to send his son out to the colonies but when he discovered that at age eighteen Peter had married Agnes Butler without his permission, almost immediately he shipped them out to South Africa where he had bought them a farm. The farm in South Africa failed and Stephen's parents returned to Hampshire where he was born. 4 When Stephen was six he came out with his family to Canada where they settled on a farm near the village of Sutton, Ontario and the shores of Lake Simcoe. 5 Their farm in the township of Georgina in York County was also unsuccessful and the family was kept afloat by money sent from Leacock's paternal grandfather. His father became an alcoholic in the fall of 1878; he travelled west to Manitoba with his brother E P Leacock, the subject of Stephen's book My Remarkable Uncle published in 1942, leaving behind Agnes and the children. Stephen Leacock, always of obvious intelligence, was sent by his grandfather to the elite private school of Upper Canada College in Toronto, also attended by his older brothers, where he was top of the class and was chosen as head boy. Leacock graduated in 1887 and returned home to find that his father had returned from Manitoba. Soon after his father left the family again and never returned. 6 There is some disagreement about what happened to Peter Leacock; some suggest that he went to live in Argentina, 7 while other sources indicate that he moved to Nova Scotia and changed his name to Lewis. In 1887, seventeen-year-old Leacock started at University College at the University of Toronto where he was admitted to the Zeta Psi fraternity. His first year was bankrolled by a small scholarship but Leacock found he could not return to his studies the following year because of financial difficulties. He left university to work as a teacher an occupation he disliked immensely at Strathroy Uxbridge and finally in Toronto As a teacher at Upper Canada College his alma mater he was able simultaneously to attend classes at the University of Toronto and in 1891 earn his degree through part time studies It was during this period that his first writing was published in The Varsity a campus newspaper My Discovery of England Stephen Leacock,1925 My Discovery of England Stephen Leacock,2022-12-20

Given by Sir Owen Seaman on the Occasion of His First Lecture in London LADIES AND GENTLEMEN It is usual on these occasions for the chairman to begin something like this The lecturer I am sure needs no introduction from me And indeed when I have been the lecturer and somebody else has been the chairman I have more than once suspected myself of being the better man of the two Of course I hope I should always have the good manners I am sure Mr Leacock has to disguise that suspicion However one has to go through these formalities and I will therefore introduce the lecturer to you My

My Discovery of England Stephen Leacock, 2016-07-02 Excerpt from the Introduction Ladies and gentlemen this is Mr Stephen Leacock Mr Leacock this is the flower of London intelligence or perhaps I should say one of the flowers the rest are coming to your other lectures In ordinary social life one stops at an introduction and does not proceed to personal details But behaviour on the platform as on the stage is seldom ordinary I will therefore tell you a thing or two about Mr Leacock In the first place by vocation he is a Professor of Political Economy and he practises humour frenzied fiction instead of frenzied finance by way of recreation There he differs a good deal from me who have to study the products of humour for my living and by way of recreation read Mr Leacock on political economy Further Mr Leacock is all British being English by birth and Canadian by residence I mention this for two reasons firstly because England and the Empire are very proud to claim him for their own and secondly because I do not wish his nationality to be confused with that of his neighbours on the other side For English and American humourists have not always seen eye to eye When we fail to appreciate their humour they say we are too dull and effete to understand it and when they do not appreciate ours they say we haven't got any

My Discovery of England Stephen Leacock, 2015-03-06 The mystery had now reached its climax First the man had been undoubtedly murdered Secondly it was absolutely certain that no conceivable person had done it It was therefore time to call in the great detective He gave one searching glance at the corpse In a moment he whipped out a microscope Ha ha he said as he picked a hair off the lapel of the dead man's coat The mystery is now solved He held up the hair Listen he said we have only to find the man who lost this hair and the criminal is in our hands The inexorable chain of logic was complete The detective set himself to the search For four days and nights he moved unobserved through the streets of New York scanning closely every face he passed looking for a man who had lost a hair On the fifth day he discovered a man disguised as a tourist his head enveloped in a steamer cap that reached below his ears The man was about to go on board the Gloritania

My Discovery of England Stephen Leacock, 2020-03-20 FOR some years past a rising tide of lecturers and literary men from England has washed upon the shores of our North American continent The purpose of each one of them is to make a new discovery of America They come over to us travelling in great simplicity and they return in the ducal suite of the Aquitania They carry away with them their impressions of America and when they reach England they sell them This export of impressions has now been going on so long that the balance of trade in impressions is all disturbed There is no doubt that the Americans and Canadians have been too generous in this matter of giving away impressions We emit them with the careless ease of a glow worm and like the glow worm ask for nothing in return But this irregular and one sided traffic has now assumed such great proportions that we are compelled to ask whether it is right to allow these people to carry away from us impressions of the very highest commercial value without giving us any pecuniary compensation whatever British lecturers have been known to land in New York pass the customs drive uptown in a closed taxi and then forward to England from the closed taxi itself ten dollars worth of impressions of American national character I have myself seen an English literary man the biggest I believe he had at least the appearance of it sit in the corridor of a fashionable New York hotel and look gloomily into his hat and then from his very hat produce an estimate of the genius of America at twenty cents a word The nice question as to whose twenty cents that was never seems to have occurred to him My Discovery of England Stephen Leacock, 2018-08-07 My Discovery of England Large Print By Stephen Leacock The Balance of Trade in Impressions FOR some years past a rising tide of lecturers and literary men from England has washed upon the shores of our North American continent The purpose of each one of them is to make a new discovery of America They come over to us travelling in great simplicity and they return in the ducal suite of the Aquitania They carry away with them their impressions of America and when they reach England they sell them This export of impressions has now been going on so long that the balance of trade in impressions is all disturbed There is no doubt that the Americans and Canadians have been too generous in this matter of giving away impressions We emit them with the careless ease of a glow worm and like the glow worm ask for nothing in return But this irregular and one sided traffic has now assumed such great proportions that we are compelled to ask whether it is right to allow these people to carry away from us impressions of the very highest commercial value without giving us any pecuniary compensation whatever British lecturers have been known to land in New York pass the customs drive uptown in a closed taxi and then forward to England from the closed taxi itself ten dollars worth of impressions of American national character I have myself seen an English literary man the biggest I believe he had at least the appearance of it sit in the corridor of a fashionable New York hotel and look gloomily into his hat and then from his very hat produce an estimate of the genius of America at twenty cents a word The nice question as to whose twenty cents that was never seems to have occurred to him We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience My Discovery of England HardPress, Leacock Stephen 1869-1944, 2013-01 Unlike some other reproductions of classic texts 1 We have not used OCR Optical Character Recognition as this leads to bad quality books with introduced typos 2 In books where there are images such as portraits maps sketches etc We have endeavoured to keep the quality of these images so they represent accurately the original artefact Although occasionally there may be certain imperfections with these old texts we feel they deserve to be made available for future generations to enjoy MY

Harper, 2023-12-18 In The Old Inns of Old England Charles G Harper invites readers on a richly illustrated journey through the picturesque landscape of England's historic inns. With a keen eye for detail, Harper employs a lyrical prose style that gracefully blends travel writing with historical narrative. Each chapter serves as both an homage and an account of the architectural beauty and regional character represented by these establishments, particularly during the late Victorian era, a time when such inns were vital social hubs amid rapid industrialization. Harper's attention to the vernacular architecture, local lore, and anecdotes brings the essence of each location to life, creating an immersive experience for the reader. Charles G. Harper, a prolific writer and illustrator, was deeply influenced by the burgeoning interest in local history and heritage preservation during the early 20th century. His extensive travels across England, paired with his background as an artist and his fascination with the interplay between culture and place, shaped his approach to documenting the inns. Harper's works often reflect his passion for English landscapes and the stories they harbor, making him an authoritative figure in the realm of travel literature. This book is a must-read for anyone with a penchant for English history, architecture, or travel literature. Harper's vivid descriptions and insights not only enrich the reader's appreciation for these historical inns but also offer a nostalgic glimpse into the social fabric of England's past. Whether you are an armchair traveler or planning an exploration of the English countryside, The Old Inns of Old England will undoubtedly inspire wanderlust and curiosity.
