Take A Sneak Peak Inside Page 15 Nose piercings have numerous advantages as compared to the other body piercings. Some of these advantages are outlined below. Nose piercings are the types that are relatively difficult for the piercer to make a mistake. There is a wide variety of nose jewelry to choose from. If by any reason you do not want the piercing anymore, you simply take it out and the hole will not take too long to completely heal and there will be no scar left behind. They are relatively simple piercings to have which does not even cause a lot of pain. Types of nose piercings The nose allows for a few different variations in piercing. These are as follows: Nostril piercing the nostril piercing involves the penetration of the fleshy nares on either side of the nose. This is the most common place for nose piercing. A ring or a stud is best for starting but make sure the jewelry is not too tight to the nose if it is a stud. Bridge piercing the bridge piercing is sometimes known as Earl piercing, taking after the name of the man who did this type of piercing first. This is done on the surface of the nasal bridge, lining up between the eyes. This can sometimes be hard to heal and carries a high potential for rejection. Septum piercing These piercings are placed in the cartilage wall between the chambers of the nose at the bottom of the nostrils. It is the only nose piercing that can be made invisible.
