The Patent-Competition Interface in Developing Countries Thomas K. Cheng, 2021-12-16 This book proposes an approach to the patent competition interface for developing countries It puts forward a theoretical framework after canvassing relevant policy considerations and examines the many reasons why patent protection is not essential for generating innovation incentives in developing countries These include the tendency of the patent system to overcompensate innovators the availability of other appropriation mechanisms for innovators to monetize their innovations and the lack of appropriate technological capacity in many developing countries to take advantage of the incentives generated by the patent system It also argues that developing countries with a small population need not pay heed to the impact of their patent system on the incentives of foreign innovators It then proposes a classification of developing countries into production countries technology adaptation countries and proto innovation countries and argues that dynamic efficiency considerations take on different meanings for developing countries depending on their technological capacities For the vast majority of developing countries bereft of meaningful innovation capacity foreign technology transfer is the main vehicle for technological progress The chief dynamic policy consideration for these countries is hence incentives for technology transfer instead of innovation incentives There are three main means of voluntary technology transfer importation of technological goods foreign direct investment and technology licensing Competition law regulation of patent exploitation practices interacts with these three means of technology transfer in different ways and an appropriate approach to the patent competition interface for these countries needs to take these into account Distilling all these considerations the book proposes a development stage specific approach to the patent competition interface for developing countries The approach is then applied to a number of patent exploitation practices including unilateral refusal to deal patent tying excessive pricing for pharmaceuticals reverse payment settlements and restrictive licensing practices

Temporal Asymmetries in Philosophy and Psychology Christoph Hoerl,Teresa McCormack,Alison Fernandes,2022-02-24 Humans attitudes towards an event often vary depending on whether the event has already happened or has yet to take place The dread felt at the thought of a forthcoming exam turns into relief once it is over Recent research in psychology also shows that people value past events less than future ones such as offering less pay for work already carried out than for the same work to be carried out in the future This volume brings together philosophers and psychologists with a shared interest in such psychological past future asymmetries It asks questions such as What different kinds of psychological past future asymmetries are there and how are they related Under what conditions do humans exhibit them To what extent do they reflect features of time itself or particular beliefs people have about time Are they rational or at least rationally permissible or should we aspire to being temporally neutral What exactly does temporal neutrality consist of

The British Hegelians Peter Robbins,2019-09-10 Originally published in 1982 this volume examines the sources of British Hegelian thinking the lines of its development and intellectual relationships among members of the school The sources in this book include twentieth century Marxians who pioneered the move back to Hegel such as Gramsci and Lukacs It includes brief biographical entries of the principal British Hegelians and of minor figures who paved the way for Hegel's entry into British philosophy widely known as shadow education because of the way that it mimics mainstream schooling has greatly expanded worldwide. It consumes considerable family resources, provides employment for tutors, occupies the time of students and has a backwash on regular schools. Although such tutoring has become a major industry and a daily activity for students, tutors and families, the research literature has been slow to catch up with the phenomenon. The topic is in some respects difficult to research precisely because it is shadowy. Contours are indistinct and the actors may hesitate to share their experiences and perspectives. Presenting methodological lessons from diverse cultures, the book contains chapters from both high income and low income settings in Asia, Caribbean, Europe and the Middle East. Separately and together, the chapters present valuable insights into the design and conduct of research. The book will assist both consumers and producers of research. Consumers will become better judges of the strengths, weaknesses and orientations of literature on the theme and producers will gain insights for design of instruments, collection of data and interpretation of findings. The editors: Mark Bray is UNESCO Chair Professor in Comparative Education at the University of Hong Kong; Ora Kwo is an Associate Professor in the Comparative Education Research Centre at the University of Hong Kong; Boris Joki is a Scientific Associate in the Centre for Educational Research and Development at the Institute for Social Research in Zagreb, Croatia.
