Special Advocates in the Adversarial System John Jackson, 2019-07-24 The last twenty years have seen an unprecedented rise in the use of secret courts or closed material proceedings largely brought about in response to the need to protect intelligence sources in the fight against terrorism This has called into question the commitment of legal systems to long cherished principles of adversarial justice and due process Foremost among the measures designed to minimise the prejudice caused to parties who have been excluded from such proceedings has been the use of special advocates who are given access to sensitive national security material and can make representations to the court on behalf of excluded parties Special advocates are now deployed across a range of administrative civil and criminal proceedings in many common law jurisdictions including the UK Canada New Zealand Hong Kong and Australia This book analyses the professional services special advocates offer across a range of different types of closed proceedings Drawing on extensive interviews with special advocates and with lawyers and judges who have worked with them the book examines the manner in which special advocates are appointed and supported how their position differs from that of ordinary counsel within the adversarial system and the challenges they face in the work that they do Comparisons are made between different special advocate systems and with other models of security cleared counsel including that used in the United States to consider what changes might be made to strengthen their adversarial role in closed proceedings In making an assessment of the future of special advocacy the book argues that there is a need to reconceptualise the unique role that special advocates play in the administration of justice

Mobility Scooters Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Transport Committee, 2010 In the light of anecdotal accounts of accidents involving the vehicles but little hard evidence MPs urge the Government to collect better data on the use of scooters as well as incidents and injuries where they are involved To develop sound policy we need a comprehensive evidence base detailing the number and nature of incidents involving mobility scooters on the UK s pavements and roads Only by doing so will issues such as the legal status of mobility scooters the appropriateness of proficiency tests and the rights of users to take the vehicles on public transport be adequately addressed The Committee s report notes that the Department for Transport has launched a consultation on many of these issues but is concerned that after a similar review in 2005 Ministers failed to act on many of its findings With a growing number of mobility scooter users on the UK s pavements and roads the MPs call on the Government to take decisive action where necessary

The Provision of Allergy Services Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Health Committee, 2004 provision of allergy Services Sixth report of session 2003 04 Vol 2 Oral and written Evidence

House of Commons - Transport Committee: Access to Ports - HC 266 Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee, 2013-11-26 In this report looking at policy for improving road and rail access to ports the Transport Committee urges the Department for Transport

DfT to become a keener advocate for UK ports The Government should contribute to significant improvements to strategic networks which also deliver wider benefits rather than simply expect port operators to pick up the entire bill for measures required to mitigate increased traffic due to port expansion If the Government chooses to apply European Commission state aid rules in this area more strictly than other EU countries it should explain why it does so Policy in this area should be applied consistently across the country While some ports have contributed towards transport schemes to improve access others have not and the differences in approach have not been explained or justified Ports should also continue to contribute to local transport infrastructure improvements following discussions with relevant local bodies The Department for Transport should demonstrate whether port master plans have had any impact highlighting good examples of such plans and of how they have influenced decision makers Finally the Government should devise a more effective successor to the Waterborne Freight Grant to stimulate coastal shipping

Dog Control and Welfare Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee,2013-02-15 DEFRA s belated proposals to tackle irresponsible dog ownership are too limited Since 2007 dogs have killed seven people including five children in private homes The NHS also spends over 3 million annually treating dog attack injuries Some eight assistance dogs a month and thousands of livestock annually are attacked by dogs The Home Office approach to tackling antisocial behaviour is too simplistic and fails to reflect the impact that poor breeding and training by irresponsible owners can have on a dog s behaviour New rules should give enforcement officers more effective powers including Dog Control Notices to prevent dog related antisocial behaviour Local authorities need to devote more resources to the effective management of stray dogs MPs call for changes in the legislation to give powers to extend the banned list to include other dogs with particularly aggressive characteristics At the same time those tasked to enforce legislation should have the discretion to neuter rather than destroy a banned animal where a particular dog poses no threat The Advisory Council on Welfare Issues of Dog Breeding should be given a formal regulatory role to enforce standards Any breeder producing more than two litters per year should be licensed and subject to welfare checks The Kennel Club should stop registering puppies from breeders not compliant with its own Assured Breeder Scheme It should also commission an independent annual review of Breed Standards led by vets to eliminate health problems linked to breeding for exaggerated characteristics Lastly MPs call on websites advertising pets to develop a voluntary Code of Practice

Energywatch and Postwatch Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts,2005-11-29 In 2000 two new consumer bodies the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council Energywatch and the Consumer Council for Postal Services Postwatch were established to represent the views of consumers to investigate consumer complaints and to provide advice and information services Following on from the National Audit Office report HC 1076 session 2003 04 ISBN 0102929793 published in October 2004 the Committee s report examines the effectiveness of the postal and energy watchdogs in their role of promoting and protecting the interests of consumers Overall the Committee is unimpressed with the achievements of either watchdog the level of consumer complaints has remained high with low consumer recognition of their role whilst operating costs have escalated The Committee's report makes a number of recommendations designed to encourage improvement in performance and to reduce costs DFID Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2012-02-03 The DFID's transfer programmes deliver cash food and assets such as livestock directly to people living in poverty Transfers can be used to tackle a range of issues such as hunger and malnutrition or access to health and education services in a variety of contexts In 2010 11 the Department spent 192 million on social protection programmes which includes its transfer programmes The evidence heard suggests transfer programmes are effective in targeting aid and ensuring the money goes directly to the poorest and most vulnerable people It is therefore surprising that the use of transfer programmes has not increased The Department only plans to support transfer programmes in 17 of its 28 priority countries It does not have an overall strategy for the use of transfers and its decisions on where to support transfer programmes look reactive The decision as to whether or not to propose a transfer programme is taken by staff working in the country and it is not clear why there are extensive programmes in some countries and none in others The Department does not collect data on all the costs of the transfer programmes it supports and the Department is therefore unable to say whether it is lifting more people out of poverty for every pound spent on transfers compared to other programmes The Department's long term objective is for the governments of recipient countries to take on the responsibility of owning and funding transfers as part of a sustainable social security system However the Department has not been clear about how individual programmes will be sustained Re-licensing Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: ODPM: Housing, Planning, Local Government and the Regions Committee, 2006-03-17 The Licensing Act 2003 brought ten existing licensing schemes administered by local authorities into one new regime and created more flexible licensing hours This report concentrates on the technicalities of licensing all those applying for a licence for the first time or needing a new licence under the Act had to submit applications by a certain date The transition period was in 2005 and it soon became apparent that people involved in the re-licensing process were encountering difficulties The Committee finds that the Department for Culture Media and Sport DCMS has failed to administer the transition period effectively Despite a two year gap between the passing of the legislation and the implementation of the Act regulations and guidance were issued late and proved to be contradictory and confusing Local authorities were unable to train staff or prepare application materials in good time There was inadequate support from central government for local authorities Many licensing fees rose dramatically leading to concerns that some small businesses might abandon their licensable activities The regulatory burden on residents licensees and local authorities appears to have increased The government does not appear to recognise some of the issues hindering the smooth operation of the Act Overly prescriptive regulations and unhelpful constraints on local government structure are both causing difficulties Defence Information Infrastructure Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons.

Public Accounts Committee, Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Committee of Public Accounts, 2009 The Ministry of Defence is currently replacing hundreds of existing computer systems with a single new system called the Defence Information Infrastructure DII The programme to design install and run this is being led by the ATLAS consortium The programme began in March 2005 and will cost an estimated 7.1 billion by 2015 if fully implemented The implementation has suffered major delays The main causes of the delay of terminal installation being over optimistic assumptions about the condition of the buildings into which DII would be fitted The DII Programme also provides a range of core software such as word process email internet access and security This should all have been available in June 2006 but less than half of the requirement had been delivered two years later As a result of these problems the Department's existing computer systems have had to be used for longer than intended with the increased risk that one or more of them will fail On the basis of a report by the Comptroller and Auditor General the Committee examined the Ministry of Defence on the difficulties experienced on the DII Programme in the past and the measures put in place to deliver improvement in future

Public Trust in Government Statistics Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Public Administration Select Committee, 2013-02-25 In this report the Public Administration Select Committee PASC concludes that despite the positive steps implemented by the Statistics and Registration Service Act 2007 the Act there remain issues and concerns about the way government statistics are produced and disseminated which remain a genuine risk to public confidence in the statistical system and must be addressed The Act was intended to ensure that statistics are produced to the highest professional standards and that effective governance structures are in place to protect transparency and accountability and the Committee found the Act had helped to improve the operation of the statistical system However the Act needs to have greater clarity and transparency in the way it operates and in the functioning of the UK Statistics Authority the Statistics Authority Those who regulate the quality of National Statistics are in the same organisation as those officials who produce data the two groups should have a clear separation in practice but this is hard to demonstrate when they work in the same building and share support services It is also not appropriate that ministers should have lengthy prior access to certain statistics but other interested parties do not The Statistics Authority does not seem to have sufficient control over the quality and integrity of the different data sets and statistical products produced by departments and their agencies Planning and improving data access both within Government and for users outside Government should be given greater attention by the Statistics Authority as well as by Government departments

Bibliographic Guide to Technology New York Public Library. Research Libraries, 1978

The Department for Transport Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2009 In 2005 the Department for Transport took over responsibility for passenger rail franchising from the Strategic Rail Authority Eight franchises half of the 16 franchises currently in operation across the country have been re let with the train operator on six out of the eight franchises being changed The Department specifies the minimum levels and quality of passenger services and agrees annual levels of subsidy or premium which it will pay to or receive from each train operator for franchise terms of typically 7 to 10 years. It has announced plans to add a total of 1 300 additional rail carriages to operator fleets across all 16 franchises to reduce overcrowding. In January 2009 the average increase of unregulated fares was 7 per cent with some as high as 20 per cent. Special low fare offers are available often through the internet but those without access to a computer may need help to identify and book these fares. The Department projected that taxpayer support for the eight franchises would reduce and in five cases turn into payments from the train operators. If the projections are realised a direct subsidy of 811 million to train operators in 2006/07 would be replaced by a 326 million receipt from train operators in 2011/12. Grants to Network Rail if kept at the 2005/06 level would mean passenger services receiving 926 million of support from the taxpayer in 2011/12 reduced from about 2 063 million in 2005/06. This reflects a policy of rebalancing service costs with a higher proportion for the passenger and an overall reduction in subsidy. This outcome depends more on continued rail passenger growth than on fare increases.

Bibliographic Guide to Business and Economics New York Public Library. Research Libraries, 1976. The compensation scheme for former Icelandic water trawlermen Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2008-02-26. This report from the Committee of Public Accounts follows two other reports into the subject of the compensation for former Icelandic water trawlermen: an NAO report HCP 530 session 2006/07 ISBN 9780102945621 and HCP 313 session 2006/07 entitled Put together in haste Cod Wars ISBN 9780102944471. The Committee took evidence from the Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on administration of the compensation scheme. The Scheme was set up to compensate former trawlermen who had lost their jobs when the distant water fishing industry collapsed in the 1970s. At the time of the collapse most trawlermen did not receive compensation. The Scheme itself ran between October 2000 and October 2002 with some 7 000 claimants and a sum of 42 million having been paid to 4 400 former trawlermen. Findings in the two earlier reports indicated the then Department of Trade and Industry had problems in verifying claims for the scheme and further that it lacked an understanding of the working practices of the 1970s fishing industry. The Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman found maladministration of the Scheme especially in delivering it in an effective manner. The Committee of Public Accounts has set out a number of conclusions and recommendations including that the Department should learn lessons from this and the previous reports when administering future schemes that it is important for the Department to test the availability of evidence on real cases before launching new compensation schemes that a clear understanding of the industry needs to be in place before setting the terms of any grant schemes that the Department failed to test the impact of the scheme's rules on different types of applicant before the scheme's launch in 25 of 100 cases there was insufficient evidence to say whether payments made by the Department accorded with the scheme's rules the Department did not employ proper project planning and risk management.
