Essential Question: How can we write a narrative by introducing a character, setting, and establishing a situation?

CCSS: W.3.3a Write narratives to describe real or imagined experiences or events using effective descriptive, descriptive details, and clear event sequences.

Materials/Vocabulary	Assessments Used Throughout Lesson	Questions
Materials: draft pads, word bank, Ready Gen sheet of the Year Materials (RGC), The Case of the Chipping Carriage , Real Life Settings Chart , Personal Narrative Checklist , Personal Narrative Chart Words: problem, situation, characters, setting	Answers to questioning, WRG responses, independent writing practice
TIME: 2-3 activities Teacher's Edition page 40	INSTRUCTIONS: Explain to students that when writing a story a writer introduces a character and a setting to "hook" off the story. The writer uses these elements to establish a situation—the basic information the reader needs to understand what is happening in the story. Hooked the setting tells the time and place. A story can take place in the past, the present, or the future. A story can take place in a city or small town, a great office or an ice cream shop. The setting influences what the story will be about. Characters in a story also influence what the story will be about. Point out to students that characters in a story often have a problem that they need or want to solve. This problem is usually what the story is about.	Why do you think the setting of a story is so important? How can the setting influence what the story will be about? How can the characters influence what the story will be about?
15-20 minutes	DO: Through discussion, help students understand how characters and setting help tell the story. ➔ Refer to page 1 of The Case of the Chipping Carriage introducing Doyle and Fawcett. Science Dictionary: Say: The reader is introduced to Doyle and Fawcett and given important detail; they are science detectives. ➔ Refer to page 1, again for the introduction of the setting. Say: "I know the setting is inside Doyle's attic as a key step. I know this because of the following text details." Read: "On a damp, drizzly day, in an attic not too far away, Orville Doyle worked alone in his home-made laboratory." Say: "The reader is introduced to the setting, a home-made laboratory." ➔ Repeat this with page 2. "Bumpy, bumpy" is a major emergency" someone screamed on the other end of the phone. "There's a monster in my garage can?" Explain to student a that a situation is introduced. Doyle and Fawcett must solve the problem of the monster in the garage can. ➔ Say, "When writing a narrative, you should introduce a character and setting."	Which characters are introduced? What is the setting in the opening of The Case of the Chipping Carriage ? What problem needs to be solved?
3-5 minutes	WRG DO: Have students turn and talk about the characters and settings in their stories. Have them share how they plan on introducing the characters, setting and problem.	How will you introduce the characters, setting, and problem in your story?
20 minutes	YOU DO: Students will all begin a fictional narrative in their RGC page 10 by introducing a character and an interesting setting that will help tell a story. Encourage students to use text-based vocabulary words. (if possible) laboratory and solution.  Differentiated Group Differentiated Activity
