Allusion

a brief and indirect reference to a person, place, thing, or idea of historical, cultural, literary, or political significance

History of the poetic

The Romantic Period: 1790–1870 The Romantic Period of writing was heavily influenced by politics and economics at the time. Many writers also found inspiration in the French Revolution when King Louis XVI was overthrown (and beheaded) and the French Republic was formed.

Movements for the abolition of slavery started to permeate Europe and North America with more and more writers openly sharing their opinions on the topic. This period was also characterized by a call against the First Industrial Revolution and a glorification of nature.

Modernist period: World War I (1914–1919) and World War II (1939–1945)

This era in the Western World meant more opportunities for women and minorities. Things did not "magically" change—it required great effort and work.

The Contemporary Period: Started at the end of World War II with an explosion of social changes and awareness. The writing of this era is characterized by changing roles for women and a variety of civil rights. The evolution of faster communication also meant ideas spread more easily around the world. The Civil Rights Movement of the 1950s and 1960s in the United States occurred at the same time as the race riots and fight for equality in the United Kingdom and the
