Hanna, Laura Macchi, Karin Binder, Laura Martignon, Katharina Loibl, 2023-09-05 Modern Mathematics is constructed rigorously through proofs based on truths which are either axioms or previously proven theorems. Thus it is par excellence a model of rational inquiry. Links between Cognitive Psychology and Mathematics Education have been particularly strong during the last decades. Indeed the Enlightenment view of the rational human mind that reasons, makes decisions and solves problems based on logic and probabilities was shaken during the second half of the twentieth century. Cognitive psychologists discovered that human thoughts and actions often deviate from rules imposed by strict normative theories of inference. Yet these deviations should not be called errors as Cognitive Psychologists have demonstrated these deviations may be either valid heuristics that succeed in the environments in which humans have evolved or biases that are caused by a lack of adaptation to abstract information formats. Humans as the cognitive psychologist and economist Herbert Simon claimed do not usually optimize but rather satisfice even when solving a problem. This Research Topic aims at demonstrating that these insights have had a decisive impact on Mathematics Education. We want to stress that we are concerned with the view of bounded rationality that is different from the one espoused by the heuristics and biases program. In Simon's bounded rationality and its direct descendant ecological rationality, rationality is understood in terms of cognitive success in the world, correspondence rather than in terms of conformity to content-free norms of coherence e.g. transitivity.

Approximate Number System and Mathematics Jingguang Li, Xinlin Zhou, Marcus Lindskog, 2019-11-25 Humans process quantity information without the aid of language or symbols to guide a variety of everyday life decisions. The cognitive system that supports this intuitive skill is often referred to as the approximate number system (ANS). It has been argued that the ANS serves as the foundation of the formal symbolic number system in mathematics. Abundant empirical evidence is supportive of this view: acuity of the ANS is positively correlated with symbolic math performance; training of the ANS may cause improvements in symbolic math performance; and the ANS and symbolic number processing may share a common neural underpinning. However, recently several theories and empirical data cast doubt on the role of the ANS in symbolic math processing. This e-book aims to advance our understanding of the underlying mechanisms of the overlap between the ANS and mathematics.

Students at Risk of School Failure José Jesús Gázquez, José Carlos Núñez, 2018-10-18 The main objective of this Research Topic is to determine the conditions that place students at risk of school failure, identifying student and context variables. In spite of the fact that there is currently little doubt about how one learns and how to teach in some countries of the developed world, there is still a high rate of school failure. Although the term school failure is a very complex construct insofar as its causes, consequences and development from the field of educational psychology, the construct student engagement has recently gained special interest in an attempt to deal with the serious problem of school failure. School engagement builds on the anatomy of the student's involvement in school and describes their feelings, behaviors and thoughts about their school experiences. So engagement is an important component of students' school experience with a close relationship to achievement and school failure Children who self set academic goals attend school regularly and on time behave well in class complete their homework and study at home are likely to interact adequately with the school social and physical environments and perform well in school In contrast children who miss school are more likely to display disruptive behaviors in class miss homework frequently exhibit violent behaviors on the playground fail subjects be retained and if the behaviors persist quit school Moreover engagement should also be considered as an important school outcome eliciting more or less supportive reactions from educators For example children who display school engaged behaviors are likely to receive motivational and instructional support from their teachers The opposite may also be true But what makes student engage more or less The relevant literature indicates that personal variables e g sensory motor neurodevelopmental cognitive motivational emotional behavior problems learning difficulties addictions social and or cultural variables e g negative family conditions child abuse cultural deprivation ethnic conditions immigration or school variables e g coexistence at school bullying cyberbullying may concurrently hinder engagement preventing the student from acquiring the learnings in the same conditions as the rest of the classmates
