Ethan Frome Annotated:

Ethan Frome (Annotated) Edith Wharton, 2021-03-03 Ethan Frome is a 1911 novel by Edith Wharton. It is set against the bleak winter landscape of New England. Ethan Frome is the story of a poor farmer, lonely and downtrodden, his wife Zeena, and her cousin, the enchanting Mattie Silver. Ethan Frome: Annotated Edition Edith Wharton, 2021-02-21 The narrator tells us that he met Ethan Frome while working for a power plant in rural Massachusetts. The closest town to the plant is Starksfield, and there the narrator gets a taste of life in rural New England. Frome is the most striking character in town, a tall and lame ruin of a man, and the narrator becomes obsessed with learning Frome's story. He gathers bits of the tale from various sources around town. By chance, Frome ends up being his sleigh driver to work every morning. After about a week of riding with Frome, a terrible blizzard makes the trek all the way back to the narrator's home impossible. He is forced to take shelter at Frome's home, and there he gets the clue to Frome's tragedy. The narrator presents his vision of Frome's story to us. We then switch to a third person narrator and move twenty-four years into the past. Frome is a young man. Although he briefly pursued higher education in the sciences, the death of his father necessitated his return to the family farm. His mother was ill, and his cousin Zeena came to care for her. After his mother died, Ethan married Zeena out of loneliness. Zeena became more sickly and fussy as time passed, and their marriage has been loveless. But a year ago, Zeena's cousin Mattie Silver came to help Zeena with the housework. Ethan has fallen in love with her. Tonight he is fetching Mattie back from a church dance. Their walks together are some of Ethan's happiest moments, but he has never really considered acting on his feelings. On the way back, they talk affectionately to each other, and at some point Ethan puts his arm around Mattie to prevent her from falling. It is the most intimate physical contact they have ever had, and she does not push him away. Zeena is waiting up for them when they return, and the contrast between Zeena and Mattie could not be more defined. The next day, Zeena decides to leave for Bettsbridge to see a doctor; she has been particularly ill lately. For the first time since Mattie arrived, Ethan and Mattie are going to be alone together overnight. Ethan goes about his work joyfully, and he comes home for supper to find Mattie dressed more nicely than usual. She has gone to some trouble to make the supper table look festive, and she and Ethan try to have a pleasant evening together. But Zeena is an oppressive presence, even when she is absent, and the conversation between Ethan and Mattie becomes strained and awkward. Later that night, as they are sitting in front of the fire, Ethan takes hold of the piece of cloth Mattie is sewing. With her working on the other end of it, he kisses it gently. Mattie rolls up her work and makes her way to bed. Zeena returns the next day. The doctor has told her that she has complications, meaning that her illness is serious. She has already hired a new girl to come and help with the housework, and she plans to send Mattie packing. Ethan is crushed. But Zeena is adamant, and her decision is final. That night, Ethan kisses Mattie for the first time. The next day, Ethan takes Mattie to the train station. They take a long ride and do some walking together, and both confess their love for one another. They decide to go sledding, something they had planned on but had never gotten around to. The first ride down the hill is exhilarating On the way back up both break down into tears Mattie asks Ethan to take them down on a second ride but this time she wants him to steer them into the big elm tree at the bottom of the hill She wants to die with him Ethan does as she asks But the suicide attempt is unsuccessful Both of them live We move to twenty four years later with the narrator entering the Frome s home In the kitchen there are two women one tall and severe and the other shriveled and paralyzed The paralyzed woman is foul and hateful Ethan introduces her as Miss Mattie Silver Ethan Frome Annotated And Illustrated Book Edith Wharton,2020-07-28 Finding himself laid up in the small New England town of Starkfield for the winter the narrator sets out to learn about the life of a mysterious local named Ethan Frome who had a tragic accident some twenty years earlier After questioning various locals with little result the narrator finally comes to learn the details of Ethan s smash up as the locals call it when a violent snowstorm forces the narrator into an overnight stay at the Frome household Going back to that tragic year we find Ethan walking through snowy Starkfield at midnight He arrives at the village church where lights in the basement reveal a dance Ethan loiters by the window transfixed by the sight of a young girl in a cherry colored scarf He has come to the church to fetch his wife s cousin Mattie Silver who has been living with the Fromes for over a year helping around the house Eventually we learn that Mattie is the girl in the red scarf and the object of Ethan s affection When the dance lets out Ethan hangs back to keep his presence unknown Mattie refuses the offer of a ride from another young man named Denis Eady and begins the walk home alone Ethan catches up with her As they continue on their way together Ethan experiences a sense of thrill in Mattie s presence and the tension between the two becomes apparent However the tension dissipates when they arrive home and Zeena Ethan s sickly shrewish wife who has kept a late night vigil in anticipation of their return greets them She regards the dynamic between her husband and her cousin with obvious suspicion and Ethan goes to bed in a state of unease without a word to Zeena and with thoughts only of Mattie Ethan Frome Edith Wharton,2020 Ethan Frome (Annotated)(Illustrated) Edith Wharton,2017-11-18 This is an annotated and illustrated version of the book1 contains an updated biography of the author at the end of the book for a better understanding of the text 2 It also contains new and unique illustrations to give a better documentation and realism to the bookI had the story bit by bit from various people and as generally happens in such cases each time it was a different story If you know Starkfield Massachusetts you know the post office If you know the post office you must have seen Ethan Frome drive up to it drop the reins on his hollow backed bay and drag himself across the brick pavement to the white colonnade and you must have asked who he was It was there that several years ago I saw him for the first time and the sight pulled me up sharp Even then he was the most striking figure in Starkfield though he was but the ruin of a man It was not so much his great height that marked him for the natives were easily singled out by their lank longitude from the stockier foreign breed it was the careless powerful look he had in spite of a lameness checking each step like the jerk of a chain There was something bleak and unapproachable in his face and he was so stiffened and grizzled that I took him for an old man and was surprised to hear that he was not more than fifty two I had this from Harmon Gow who had driven the stage from Bettsbridgeto Starkfield in pre trolley days and knew the chronicle of all thefamilies on his line He s looked that way ever since he had his smash up and that stwenty four years ago come next February Harmon threw out betweenreminiscent pauses The smash up it was I gathered from the same informant which besidesdrawing the red gash across Ethan Frome s forehead had so shortened andwarped his right side that it cost him a visible effort to take the fewsteps from his buggy to the post office window He used to drive infrom his farm every day at about noon and as that was my own hour forfetching my mail I often passed him in the porch or stood beside himwhile we waited on the motions of the distributing hand behind thegrating I noticed that though he came so punctually he seldomreceived anything but a copy of the Bettsbridge Eagle which he putwithout a glance into his sagging pocket At intervals however thepost master would hand him an envelope addressed to Mrs Zenobia or Mrs Zeena Frome and usually bearing conspicuously in the upper left handcorner the address of some manufacturer of patent medicine and the nameof his specific These documents my neighbour would also pocket withouta glance as if too much used to them to wonder at their number andvariety and would then turn away with a silent nod to the post master Ethan Frome
