Reform Capacity and Macroeconomic Performance in the Nordic Countries Torben M. Andersen, Michael Bergman, Svend E. Hougaard Jensen, 2015-02-05 The outbreak of the financial crisis in 2008 has had significant effects on economic activity unemployment and public finances for all European countries However European economies do not form a homogenous region and any serious analysis of macroeconomic imbalances in Europe must account for the fact that different economic and political models and circumstances operate across the continent This book focuses on the Nordic countries Denmark Finland Iceland Norway and Sweden which have a relatively good record of undertaking fiscal and structural reforms after their own financial and debt crises in the 1980s and 1990s The Nordic countries are small and open economies well known for their high income levels high employment rates organized labour markets a relatively equal distribution of incomes and large public sectors From this perspective the book asks whether there are lessons that might be learned from the Nordic economies Is there a distinctive Nordic model that could be usefully followed by other small open economies in terms of fiscal and monetary policy design labour market policies and reforms and financial and housing market regulation It is inappropriate to define the Nordic model in terms of a common set of policies Since the key characteristics including the overarching objectives and supporting institutions have strong historical foundations copying and pasting them to other countries is not easily done Even though the Nordic experiences are not directly transferable they may add new knowledge about the importance of institutional design fiscal consolidation and structural reforms not only for macroeconomic performance but also for how to preserve key objectives such as social balance and equity

The Oceanic Feeling Isabella Lövin, Isabella L vin s The Oceanic Feeling On the Need for a New Narrative is a unique document of a life spent on the front lines of the climate battle and at the negotiating tables where the future of our planet is decided The Swedish investigative journalist who became a member of the European Parliament and then served for seven years in government five of those as Deputy Prime Minister and Climate Minister takes us on a journey behind the scenes of climate and global ocean policy making Some may remember the viral picture of her signing the Swedish climate law in 2017 As Donald Trump just had signed a regressive executive order limiting women s sexual and reproductive rights surrounded by only men she by contrast signed progressive climate legislation surrounded by women Deeply concerned about the shrinking confidence in democracy L vin offers a pedagogic and hopeful account of the fact that change can happen if there is a will and a vision But she also recognizes the main reason why humanity is not acting on the many global crises a narrative of egoism and individualism A truer and much more positive story can be found when we recognize The Oceanic Feeling a deep connection with nature people and the miraculous web of life on the planet putting empathy responsibility and awe at the center of what it is to be human How L vin asks us can we convert the world to this new healthier narrative

Deportation limbo Annika Lindberg, 2022-12-20 Deportation limbo offers a political ethnography of deportation enforcement in Denmark and Sweden It takes place in a time when deportation has emerged as a key priority in Northern European states migration policy regimes and when states are stepping up their efforts to address the so called deportation gap The book takes the reader inside detention centres deportation camps and migration offices and explores how frontline officials deal with their task of pressuring non deported migrants to leave and the injurious effects of these efforts Using the analytical frame of a continuum of state violence the book details the tension ridden enforcement of policy measures which rather than enhancing deportations render non deported people stuck in precarious limbo It brings up questions of the violence endemic to border regimes and about racism and bureaucratic exclusion in the Nordic welfare states An electronic edition of this book is freely available under a Creative Commons CC BY NC ND licence

The segregated city: A Nordic overview Moa Tunström, Shina Wang, 2019-03-28 Issues related to segregation and integration are major responsibilities and challenges for cities and a segregated urban environment can be understood as a symptom of wider social injustices In this brief overview of current research on residential segregation the focus is on structural reasons to segregation This means that it is planning policies and tendencies in socio economic development that are discussed rather than specific social integration measures and projects But there is an obvious arena where these two approaches to segregation meet and that is in the local community and its spaces for social interaction This is important to keep in mind that the integrated city is both a result of strategies and initiatives on a micro scale in the neighbourhood and between individuals and initiatives and development on a macro scale This report is part of a theme on segregation within the Nordic collaboration programme for effective integration and inclusion of refugees and immigrants in the Nordic countries Read more at www.integrationnorden.org
