Essential Management Skills For Young Entrepreneurs In Ghana:

Young Entrepreneurs in Sub-Saharan Africa Katherine V. Gough, Thilde Langevang, 2016-03-02 Young people in sub-Saharan Africa are growing up in rapidly changing social and economic environments which produce high levels of unemployment and underemployment. Job creation through entrepreneurship is currently being promoted by international organizations, governments and NGOs as a key solution despite there being a dearth of knowledge about youth entrepreneurship in an African context. This book makes an important contribution by exploring the nature of youth entrepreneurship in Ghana, Uganda and Zambia. It provides new insights into conceptual and methodological discussions of youth entrepreneurship as well as presenting original empirical data. Drawing on quantitative and qualitative research conducted under the auspices of a collaborative interdisciplinary and comparative research project, it highlights the opportunities and challenges young people face in setting up and running businesses. Divided into a number of clear sections, each with its own introduction and conclusion, the book considers the nature of youth entrepreneurship at the national level in both urban and rural areas in specific sectors including mobile telephony, mining, handicrafts and tourism, and analyses how key factors such as microfinance, social capital and entrepreneurship education affect youth entrepreneurship. New light is shed on the multifaceted nature of youth entrepreneurship and a convincing case is presented for a more nuanced understanding of the term entrepreneurship and the situation faced by many African youth today. This book will be of interest to a wide range of scholars interested in youth entrepreneurship, including in development studies, business studies, youth studies and geography, as well as to development practitioners and policy makers. Industrial Clusters and Micro and Small Enterprises in Africa World Bank,2010-12-30 The World Bank Japan International Cooperation Agency JICA Research Institute and the Foundation for Advanced Studies on International Development FASID in collaboration with researchers affiliated with the African Economic Research Consortium AERC recently conducted a study on Africa s domestic enterprises to improve the understanding of the constraints micro and small enterprises in Africa face in improving productivity and expanding their markets In Africa there are stark performance gaps between domestically owned enterprises and foreign owned enterprises in terms of sales performance productivity and ability to reach distant markets Among others size appears to be a dominant factor in explaining the gap Against this background the study analyzes how naturally formed industrial clusters concentrations of enterprises engaged in same or closely related industrial activities in specific locations could potentially mitigate constraints Africa s micro and small enterprises face and enhance their business performance The study is one of the first comprehensive quantitative inquiries on industrial clusters in Africa The analysis specifically focuses on the role of spontaneously grown clusters of light manufacturing industries based on a set of original case studies of industrial clusters conducted for this research project One of the key findings from the case studies was that cluster based micro and small enterprises are performing better than similar micro and small enterprises outside of the clusters in terms of sales performance and ability to reach distant markets Market access is a leading reason for cluster based enterprises to choose their current locations However cluster based enterprises face another set of unique growth constraints By the very nature of spontaneous agglomeration new enterprises continue to flow to the clusters seeking the profit opportunities and better access to markets at such locations The result can be intense competition in addition to increased congestion Space constraints often impede growth within clusters The lack of alternative locations available for industrial activities in the same cities generic infrastructure bottlenecks and unclear zoning policies and their unpredictable changes limit firms location choices and constrain their mobility While competition should improve efficiency lack of capacity among those competing cluster based enterprises to invest and innovate does not generate growth out of the competition The vast majority of naturally formed clusters of light manufacturing industries in Africa are still at a survival level where agglomeration externalities are only limited to expand quantity but not quality as we observe in more advanced innovation oriented clusters in elsewhere in the world Existing studies on such natural industrial clusters in Africa have found that the lack of managerial skills among entrepreneurs running micro and small enterprises is a major constraint for innovation and growth in the clusters As a part of this study pilot managerial skills training programs were conducted in two industrial clusters on an experimental basis where a group of randomly selected entrepreneurs within the clusters were given three week long crash course of based management such as bookkeeping marketing business planning and production management The impact evaluation of the experiments showed significant positive impacts of the training programs on value added and gross profits of enterprises Raising the current survival type industrial clusters which have been formed as a coping mechanism to weak investment climate into more dynamic innovating clusters will be an important avenue for fostering growth of micro and small enterprises in Africa While national efforts to improve investment climate and investments in human capital are undoubtedly important there could be more targeted policies to be formulated in complementing general policies to support growth of micro and small domestic enterprises using existing industrial clusters as a natural springboard for their growth In that context the study discusses the merit of cluster based managerial human capital development to build steps toward more innovation oriented clusters the importance of sound spatial planning policy particularly at the local level in the context of urban planning the need to expand market access and economic linkages for industrial clusters including regional integration and linkages with large enterprises

World Development Report 2013

World Bank,2012-10-15 Jobs provide higher earnings and better benefits as countries grow but they are also a driver of development Poverty falls as people work their way out of hardship and as jobs empowering women lead to greater investments in children Efficiency increases as workers get better at what they do as more productive jobs appear and less productive ones disappear Societies flourish as jobs bring together people from different ethnic and social backgrounds and provide alternatives to conflict Jobs are thus more than a byproduct of economic growth They are transformational they are what we earn what we do and even who we are High unemployment and unmet job expectations among youth are the most immediate concerns But in many developing countries where farming and self employment are prevalent and safety nets are modest are best unemployment rates can be low In these countries growth is seldom jobless Most of their poor work long hours but simply cannot make ends meet And the violation of basic rights is not uncommon Therefore the number of jobs is not all that matters jobs with high development payoffs are needed Confronted with these challenges policy makers ask difficult questions Should countries build their development strategies around growth or should they focus on jobs Can entrepreneurship be fostered especially among the many microenterprises in developing countries or are entrepreneurs born Are greater investments in education and training a prerequisite for employability or can skills be built through jobs In times of major crises and structural shifts should jobs not just workers be protected And is there a risk that policies supporting job creation in one country will come at the expense of jobs in other countries The World Development Report 2013 Jobs offers answers to these and other difficult questions by looking at jobs as drivers of development not as derived labor demand and by considering all types of jobs not just formal wage employment. The Report provides a framework that cuts across sectors and shows that the best policy responses vary across countries depending on their levels of development, endowments, demography and institutions. Policy fundamentals matter in all cases as they enable a vibrant private sector, the source of most jobs in the world. Labor policies can help as well even if they are less critical than is often assumed. Development policies from making smallholder farming viable to fostering functional cities to engaging in global markets hold the key to success. International Journal of Management and Transformation: Vol.5, No.1, 2011-09-28

Youth and Employment in Sub-Saharan Africa Hiroyuki Hino, Gustav Ranis, 2014-06-05. It is widely acknowledged that youth unemployment is one of the most critical challenges facing countries in Sub-Saharan Africa. This volume brings together an eminent group of international scholars to analyse the extent and complex nature of this joblessness and offer a set of evidence-based policy choices that could contribute to solving the problem in the short and long run. Part I reviews the existing literature on youth unemployment and underemployment in Sub-Saharan Africa from microeconomic and macroeconomic perspectives while Part II goes on to present detailed country studies of Ethiopia, Ghana, Kenya and South Africa. These studies offer a deep understanding of the situation on the ground and consider country-specific solutions. Throughout the book, it is argued that the standard ILO definition of unemployment is too narrow to correctly portray employment situations in Sub-Saharan Africa. Several alternative measures of unemployment are presented which show that joblessness is far more pervasive than commonly assumed in the literature. This volume will be of interest to academics and policy makers involved in African development. Daily Graphic Ransford Tetteh, 2014-03-05
