Whose Public Space? Ali Madanipour,2010-01-21 Public spaces mirror the complexities of urban societies as historic social bonds have weakened and cities have become collections of individuals public open spaces have also changed from being embedded in the social fabric of the city to being a part of more impersonal and fragmented urban environments Can making public spaces help overcome this fragmentation where accessible spaces are created through inclusive processes This book offers some answers to this question through analysing the process of urban design and development in international case studies in which the changing character level of accessibility and the tensions of making public spaces are explored The book uses a coherent theoretical outlook to investigate a series of case studies crossing the cultural divides to examine the similarities and differences of public space in different urban contexts and its critical analysis of the process of development management and use of public space with all its tensions and conflicts While each case study investigates the specificities of a particular city the book outlines some general themes in global urban processes It shows how public spaces are a key theme in urban design and development everywhere how they are appreciated and used by the people of these cities but also being contested by and under pressure from different stakeholders

Manno,D.E. Page,2012-12-06 The European Space Research Organisation put its first satellite into orbit in March 1968 and was successful with two more before the end of that year It was not entirely surprising therefore that the third annual ESLAB ESRIN Symposium should in some way deal with the results obtained This book is the Proceedings of that Symposium which for reasons which Dr Trendelenburg explains in the introductory talk concentrated on intercorrelating phenomena occurring during solar events and in particular during the event of 25 February 1969 It is generally acknowledged that space data could yield a much more fruitful harvest if measurements taken simultaneously in different regions of space could be compared and the detectors intercalibrated ESRO therefore sought right from the start to encourage this comparison of data The first two days of the Symposium 16 and 17 September 1969 were devoted to review lectures on interrelated phenomena occurring on the sun through interplanetary space and the magnetosphere right down to the earth's ionosphere The last two days were used to hear papers presenting results obtained from the ESRO and certain U S S R and U S A satellites during the solar events around 25 February 1969 The Proceedings published here follow the same sequence as the Symposium presentations Because of the short time interval between the solar event and the Symposium some of the data presented in the second part must be regarded as preliminary Directory of Published Proceedings ,1982
