The outcomes of this research have provided insight into the acoustic differences between the speech of COPD patients during exacerbation, COPD patients in stable condition and healthy controls. However, the results should be interpreted with caution due to the limitations of the current research. This chapter provides a reflection on the research process. The limitations and potential consequences of the design are discussed, as well as the implications for the interpretation of the results. The chapter ends with several recommendations for future research.

Writing Scientific Research Articles Margaret Cargill, Patrick D. T. O'Connor, 2011-09-13 Margaret Cargill's background as a linguist and research communications educator and Patrick O'Connor's experience as both research scientist and educator synergize to improve both the science and art of scientific writing. If the authors' goal is to give scientists the tools to write and publish compelling well-documented clear narratives that convey their work honestly and in proper context, they have succeeded admirably. Veterinary Pathology July 2009. The book is clearly written, has a logical step-by-step structure, is easy to read, and contains a lot of sensible advice about how to get scientific work published in international journals. The book is a most useful addition to the literature covering scientific writing. Aquaculture International April 2009. Writing Scientific Research Articles: Strategy and Steps guides authors in how to write as well as what to write to improve their chances of having their articles accepted for publication in international peer-reviewed journals. The book is designed for scientists who use English as a first or an additional language for research students and those who teach them paper-writing skills and for early career researchers wanting to hone their skills as authors and mentors. It provides clear processes for selecting target journals and writing each section of a manuscript, starting with the results. The stepwise learning process uses practical exercises to develop writing and data presentation skills through analysis of well-written example papers. Strategies are presented for responding to referee comments as well as ideas for developing discipline-specific English language skills for manuscript writing. The book is designed for use by individuals or in a class setting. Visit the companion site at www.writersresearch.com.au for more information.

Writing Human Factors Research Papers Don Harris, 2016-12-05. Writing high-quality papers suitable for publication within international scientific journals is now an essential skill for all early career researchers; their career progression and the reputation of the department in which they work depends upon it. However, many manuscripts are rejected or sent back for major reworking not because the science they contain is in any way bad but because the same problems keep occurring in the way that the material is presented. It is one thing to write a good scientific paper; however, it is quite another thing to get it published. This requires some additional nous. In writing this book, Don Harris draws upon nearly a quarter of a century of experience as an author and reviewer of research papers and ultimately as a journal editor. By his own admission, it contains all the things he wished that his mentors had told him 25 years ago but didn't. The material in the book is drawn from many years of finding all these things out for himself, usually by trial and error but mostly error. The text adopts a much lighter touch than is normally found in books of this type; after all, who really wants to read a book about writing research papers? The author describes his own unique approach to writing journal papers, which in his own words has proved to be extremely successful. All major points are illustrated with examples from his own published works. The book is written in the form of a manual for constructing a journal manuscript: read a chapter, write a section. However, the material it contains goes beyond just this and also describes how to select a target journal the manuscript submission process what referees are looking for in a good journal paper and how to deal with the referees comments Each chapter concludes with a checklist to ensure all the key elements have been addressed Writing and Publishing Science Research Papers in English Karen Englander,2013-10-11 This book provides a comprehensive review of the current knowledge on writing and publishing scientific research papers and the social contexts It deals with both English and non Anglophone science writers and presents a global perspective and an international focus The book collects and synthesizes research from a range of disciplines including applied linguistics the sociology of science sociolinguistics bibliometrics composition studies and science education This multidisciplinary approach helps the reader gain a solid understanding of the subject Divided into three parts the book considers the context of scientific papers the text itself and the people involved It explains how the typical sections of scientific papers are structured Standard English scientific writing style is also compared with science papers written in other languages The book discusses the strengths and challenges faced by people with different degrees of science writing expertise and the role of journal editors and reviewers Scientific Thesis Writing and Paper Presentation N. Gurumani,2019-06-11 Scientific writing and communication needs to take care of a wide range of audience from students and researchers to experts The main objective of this book is to offer the basics of scientific writing and oral presentation to students and researchers working for their M Phil and Ph D degrees in science subjects This book provides information on how to write research reports theses papers for publication etc and to prepare for poster and oral presentation at conferences and scientific meetings The book also offers guidelines for preparing proposals for research projects Researcher's Guide: Templates and guidelines for Research article in SCI journal Dr. M. A Practical Guide to Scientific Writing in Chemistry Andrew Terhemen Tyowua,2023-03-31 Successful completion of postgraduate studies especially PhD and career advancement in academia strongly depend on the ability to publish scientific papers or books and attract research grants However many chemical scientists find preparing scientific papers and research grant and book proposals difficult partly because of insufficient training in writing and partly because there are few practical books to enable them to learn the art This step by step practical guide is intended mainly for postgraduate students and early career researchers in chemical science and the libraries that serve them but will also be useful to other scientists Key Features Improves the reader s chances of getting their manuscript published in chemistry journals Increases the likelihood of winning research grants in chemistry Takes a lead by the hand approach Contains chapters on the preparation of graphical abstracts and research highlights Uses sketches and other illustration styles to aid mental visualization of concepts Contains practical examples taken from published papers and successful research grant proposals A Guide to Writing Sociology Papers Roseann Giarrusso,University of California, Los Angeles. Budgell,2008-12-05 All of us in biomedicine understand the urgency of getting experimental results into print as quickly as possible Yet this critical step in the cascade from research conception to publication receives almost no attention in our formal training It is as if we have been put to sea without a compass Our collective failure to achieve widespread literacy in our own language Biomedical Language seriously impedes the important process of disseminating new biomedical knowledge and thereby improving the human condition It is also a significant personal concern for researchers and clinicians in the highly competitive publish or perish environment of contemporary academia Of course if we are clever or lucky enough to come up with that Nobel Prize winning discovery great science will carry the day and we are likely to get published even if our writing is fairly horrid But most of us who publish are bread and butter scientists We compete for space in journals which may only accept 10% or 20% of the submissions that they receive each year For us convincing engaging writing will make the difference between being published or rejected or at least it will make the difference between being published on first submission or having to go through a number of revisions or journals None of this is to propose that good writing can make a silk purse out of a sow's ear Scientific content is the sine qua non of biomedical writing
