Abstract Background: The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of self-reported depression and anxiety among a sample of young adults in the United States. Methods: Data were obtained from the 2004 National Survey of Adolescent Health, a nationally representative survey of 10,000 young adults aged 18–24 years. Results: The prevalence of self-reported depression was 10.3% and the prevalence of self-reported anxiety was 11.8%. Conclusions: The prevalence of self-reported depression and anxiety among young adults in the United States is high. Further research is needed to determine the risk factors for self-reported depression and anxiety among young adults.
