Stopping the Spies Jane Duncan, 2018-06-01 Is South Africa on its way to becoming a surveillance state and will it need a whistleblower In 2013 former National Security Agency NSA contractor Edward Snowden leaked secret documents revealing that state agencies like the NSA had spied on the communications of millions of innocent citizens International outrage resulted but the Snowden documents revealed only the tip of the surveillance iceberg Apart from insisting on their rights to tap into communications more and more states are placing citizens under surveillance tracking their movements and transactions with public and private institutions The state is becoming like a one way mirror where it can see more of what its citizens do and say while citizens see less and less of what the state does owing to high levels of secrecy around surveillance In this book Jane Duncan assesses the relevance of Snowden's revelations for South Africa In doing so she questions the extent to which South Africa is becoming a surveillance society governed by a surveillance state Duncan challenges members of civil society to be concerned about and to act on the ever expanding surveillance capacities of the South African state Is surveillance used for the democratic purpose of making people safer or is it being used for the repressive purpose of social control especially of those considered to be politically threatening to ruling interests She explores the forms of collective action needed to ensure that unaccountable surveillance does not take place and examines what does and does not work when it comes to developing organised responses The Emperor's New Computer

Knowledge, Curriculum and Equity Brian Barrett,Ursula Hoadley,John Morgan,2017-07-20 In 2008 the first in a series of symposia established a social realist case for knowledge as an alternative to the relativist tendencies of the constructivist post structuralist and postmodernist approaches dominant in the sociology of education The second symposium focused on curriculum and the development of a theoretical language grounded in social realism to talk about issues of knowledge and curriculum Finally the third symposium brought together researchers in a broad range of contexts to build on these ideas and arguments and with a concerted empirical focus bring these social realist ideas and arguments into conversation with data Knowledge Curriculum and Equity Social Realist Perspectives contains the work of the third symposium where the strengths and gaps in the social realist approach are identified and where there is critical recognition of the need to incrementally extend the theories through empirical study Fundamentally the problem that social realism is seeking to address is about understanding the social conditions of knowledge production and exchange as well as its structuring in the curriculum and in pedagogy The central concern is with the on going social reproduction of inequality through schooling and exploring whether and how foregrounding specialised knowledge and its access holds the possibility for interrupting it This book consists of 13 chapters by different authors working in Oceania Asia Europe Africa and North America From very different vantage points the authors focus their theoretical and empirical sights on the assumptions about knowledge that
