Censorship: What it means to me and all of America

First read and respond to the article “What is Censorship” by the GILC posted under “Handouts” on the class website. In a full 2 page essay, respond to the article and relay experiences that have helped you form your attitudes toward censorship. Perhaps you haven’t thought about censorship before? It’s time to think about it now and you should spend some time talking to respected peers, friends, and family members about censorship. Through those discussions, and further research if needed, begin forming your own opinion.

You may find it helpful to recall a time you decided to “self-censor” or a time you decided to exercise your right as a citizen to “freedom of speech” and chose to share your opinions. Often, our decisions to censor ourselves or share our opinions begin a chain of events that cause us to appreciate our freedom of speech or contemplate censorship.

Be thoughtful of your audience in your organization and thorough description by using examples and narratives. Remember to come to some conclusion as to why your view of censorship is significant to others and the concept of free speech.

Remember, the first essay is always an opportunity to “show off” your writing skills for your college English Instructor. Allow yourself to be creative!

Follow all essay format instructions and review the grading rubric (both are included in your ENG 102 course description) to gain a better understanding of how this essay will be graded.
Good Luck!

researchers in medicine including the life sciences and health sciences struggle to get their research written and published. Manuscripts are typically rejected and or sent back for revisions several times before ever being published. One reason for this is that researchers have not received much instruction in the specific subjects and skills needed to write and publish scientific medical papers: research methodology, ethics, statistics, data visualization, writing, revising, and the practicalities of publishing. Instead of wasting the reader's time discussing trivialities of punctuation, spelling, etc., this book tackles all the major scientific issues that routinely lead to manuscripts getting rejected from the journals. The section Preparing covers the range of methodological, ethical, and practical aspects that researchers need to address before starting to write their paper. The section Analyzing reviews commonplace problems in the statistical analysis and presentation and how to resolve those problems. The section Drafting describes what to write in all the various parts of a paper: the Introduction, Methods, Results, Discussion, Abstract, etc. The section Revising explains and illustrates how to improve the writing style of any manuscript. The section Publishing discusses how to navigate the peer review process and all other practical aspects of the publishing phase. This book draws on the author's decade of experience as an independent medical writer and research consultant, but it is not written merely as the personal opinion of yet another expert. The entire book is grounded in the existing scientific and scholarly literature, with extensive references and a lengthy annotated bibliography, so readers can quickly obtain more information on any aspect they want. Thus, this book provides a more evidence-based scholarly account of how medical scientific papers should be written in order to improve medical communication and accelerate scientific progress. After reading this entire book, cover to cover, medical researchers will know how to write better quality medical papers and they will be able to publish their work in better journals with less time and struggle. This book is essential reading for anyone conducting research in clinical medicine, life sciences, or health sciences.
