The United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights Felice D. Gaer, Christen L. Broecker, 2013-10-02 In this first systematic examination of the role of the top United Nations human rights official, editors Felice Gaer and Christen Broecker analyze the achievements, leadership styles of, and obstacles encountered by the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights and propose recommendations for the future. The Human Right to Citizenship Barbara von Rütte, 2022-12-28 The open access publication of this book has been published with the support of the Swiss National Science Foundation. This book offers a comprehensive analysis of the right to citizenship in international and regional human rights law. It critically reflects on the limitations of state sovereignty in nationality matters and situates the right to citizenship within the existing human rights framework. It identifies the scope and content of the right to citizenship by looking not only at statelessness, deprivation of citizenship, or dual citizenship but more broadly at acquisition, loss, and enjoyment of citizenship in a migration context. Exploring the intersection of international migration, human rights law, and belonging, the book provides a timely argument for recognizing a right to the citizenship of a specific state on the basis of one's effective connections to that state according to the principle of jus nexi. Report of the Human Rights Council on Its Tenth Session United Nations. General Assembly, 2009

The Human Right to Water and its Application in the Occupied Palestinian Territories Amanda Cahill Ripley, 2011-04-11 The Human Right to Water and Its Application in the Occupied Palestinian Territories provides an overview and examination of the human right to water as determined under international human rights law. This is a highly topical issue with the UN General Assembly having passed a resolution which declares access to clean water and sanitation a human right. New York, Jul 28, 2010: the recent appointment of the UN Independent Expert on the issue of human rights obligations related to access to safe drinking water and sanitation and movement within the NGO community for an international water treaty. Amanda Cahill Ripley analyses the current legal status, substantive content, and obligations correlative to the right and examines the relationship between other economic, social, and cultural rights related to the right to water. The book goes on to look more specifically at the application of the human right to water in the Occupied Palestinian Territories. Using innovative methodology, Cahill Ripley combines legal analysis with a qualitative social science empirical case study to explore the enjoyment of the right on the ground The wider implications of the case study findings are then considered looking at what can be done to strengthen the right legally in terms of its status and codification and what remedy can be found for violations of the right both specifically in the Occupied Palestinian Territories and in a more general context The book will be of interest to students academics and practitioners within the fields of international human rights law and international humanitarian law as well as those concerned with international relations and conflict resolution within Israel Palestine and the wider Middle East region

South Africa and the UN Human Rights Council Eduard Jordaan, 2019-09-18 This book provides a detailed analysis of South Africa's actions on the UN Human Rights Council examining the country's positions on civil and political rights economic rights and development social groups whose rights are frequently violated and abuses in specific countries The most detailed and comprehensive study of any country's record on the UN Human Rights Council to date this book demonstrates that despite occasional support for human rights South Africa's overall record ranged from opposing to failing to support human rights This is compounded by an anti Western or anti imperial edge to South Africa's positions on the UNHRC Using South Africa as a study case of a liberal country consistently behaving illiberally this book therefore challenges the widespread belief in international relations theory typically found in liberal and constructivist thought that there is an alignment of domestic political society and foreign policy values Addressing ongoing debates since the presidency of Nelson Mandela about the place of human rights in South Africa's foreign policy South Africa and the UN Human Rights Council will be useful to students and scholars of international relations human rights international law and African politics

Criminal Punishment and Human Rights: Convenient Morality Adnan Sattar, 2019-03-05 This book examines the relationship between international human rights discourse and the justifications for criminal punishment Using interdisciplinary discourse analysis it exposes certain paradoxes that underpin the International Bill of Human Rights academic commentaries on human rights law and the global human rights monitoring regime in relation to the aims of punishment in domestic penal systems It argues that human rights discourse owing to its theoretical kinship with Kantian philosophy embodies a paradoxical commitment to human dignity on the one hand and retributive punishment on the other Further it sustains the split between criminal justice and social justice which results in a sociologically ill informed understanding of punishment Human rights discourse plays a paradoxical role vis vis the punitive power of the state as it seeks to counter criminalisation in some areas and backs the introduction of new criminal offences and longer prison sentences in others The underlying priorities it is argued have been shaped by a number of historical circumstances Drawing on archival material the study demonstrates that the international penal discourse produced during the late nineteenth and early twentieth century laid greater emphasis on offender rehabilitation and was more attentive to the social context of crime than is the case with the modern human rights discourse
