Good Question is a textbook intended for children and youth teachers and researchers interested in doing collaborative research in their community The volume starts out as comic book research methods textbook that intends to introduce children and youth to the fundamental structure of the research process its elements and steps as well as with the research activities associated with the different aspects of research practice in general and arts based image based research in particular This unique approach allows children and youth to learn the craft of research in a playful way and to become knowledgeable and competent co-researchers with adults contributing to all phases of the study's design The volume encourages teachers and researchers to see the important role of play in teaching children and young people about the research process and gives them the tools to engage children and youth in playful arts based image based inquiries The complexity of exploring collaborative research required an innovative way of overcoming the linearity of a paper bound print text and the way we read it The volume is intentionally organized in three sections starting with the comic book because it invites an openness to layered non-linear research literacy The volume also includes an anthology of research examples of conducting arts based image based research with children and several theoretical essays focused on play as research and collaborative arts based image based research The later sections featuring research examples and theory though heavily illustrated have been peer reviewed and formatted more in the academic tradition Thus Good Question represents an attempt to make sense of children's playful engagement in arts based image based inquiry activities with adults as research By playing with the forms and traditions of the comic book the research methods textbook and the academic book together we have attempted to respectfully disassemble and reassemble book form We invite readers to discover those research conventions that are capable of establishing what is gathered and presented here as collaborative research with children We imagine this volume contributing to the quest for new ways of living together of generating more and more incisive and inclusive dialogues Greene 1994 p 459 as both a personal and a collective endeavor Arts-Based Research Jan Jagodzinski, Jason Wallin, 2013-04-19 A provocative book an important book jagodzinski's and Wallin's betrayal is in fact a wake up call for art based research a loving critique of its directions jagodzinski's and Wallin's reference is the question what art can do not what it means Theirs is an ultimate affirmation that uncovers the singularities that compose and give consistency to art not as an object but as an event Their betrayal consists in an affirmation of life and becoming positing a performative machinics of the arts which is in absolute contraposition with the hegemonic discourse of art and as an object of knowledge and representation This does not only concern academia but also politics and ethics an untimely book that comes just at the right time Bernd Herzogenrath Goethe University Frankfurt am Main Germany author of An American Body Politic

A Deleuzian Approach and editor of Deleuze Pedagogies Against the State Insights From Music Therapy Practice and Research Jessica Atkinson, 2025-07-31 This book drawing on the author's 26 years as a music therapist explores experience and evidence in music therapy. It asks which experiences count, why, and what is revealed of the cultures of music therapy when some experience is regarded as evidence and some is not. At the heart of music therapy lies a nonverbal phenomenon: a shared musical encounter. Those involved can recognise it and respond without words as insiders. However, what this experience is and how it relates to evidence is not widely explored in music therapy practice and research. Furthermore, the investigations which do exist tend to be verbal even when participants are nonverbal. As an alternative, this autoethnographic book honours the arts-based encounters fundamental to music therapy by offering the reader their own arts-based experience through poems, images, and more. Through them, the reader or collaborator is invited to consider the other, knowing which comes from arts-based encounter and its value. Using phenomenological and Aesthetic Critical Realist approaches, this work argues that relational musical experience central to music therapy is valuable on its own terms as musically mediated therapeutic evidence of personhood. This challenges the professional status quo which privileges verbal knowledge creation and evidence measured by outsiders.

Arts-Based Methods for Research with Children Anna Hickey-Moody, Christine Horn, Marissa Willcox, Eloise Florence, 2021-02-22 This book offers a practical methodological guide to conducting arts-based research with children by drawing on five years of the authors' experience carrying out arts-based research with children in Australia and the UK. Based on the Australian Research Council-funded Interfaith Childhoods project, the authors describe methods of engaging communities and making data with children that foreground children's experiences and worldviews through making, being with, and viewing art. Framing these methods of doing, seeing, being, and believing through art as modes of understanding children's strategies for negotiating personal identities and values, this book explores the value of arts-based research as a means of obtaining complex information about children's life worlds that can be difficult to express verbally.

Creative Methods in Military Studies Alice Cree, 2023-08-02 What can creative methods offer our understanding of military power and militarised cultures? What constitutes creative research in military studies? And what are some of the challenges of this type of work? This edited volume brings together authors working at the cutting edge of creative research in military studies to explore how creativity and creative practice can shed new light on often taken-for-granted concepts in critical military research. In twelve empirically and conceptually rich chapters, authors from a diverse range of disciplinary fields draw on theatre, model making, songwriting, dance, spoken word, paper making, and more to question what military research can and should look like. As a collection, the book explores topics of central concern in military studies such as militarism, military experience, and militarised cultures, as well as more practical questions around ethics, positionality, and research relationships. This path-breaking new volume considers what exactly constitutes creativity in critical military research while offering the tools for researchers to think anew about big questions in the field.
