Abstract: The purpose of this study was to investigate the effect of a 12-week, 100% body weight (BW) resistance training program on the muscle strength and endurance of the lower extremities of sedentary women. The subjects were 15 female college students (mean age = 20.5 years, range 18–22 years) who were randomly assigned to either a control group (n = 7) or an exercise group (n = 8). The exercise group performed a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program, while the control group did not. The results showed that the exercise group had significantly greater increases in muscle strength and endurance than the control group. The findings of this study suggest that a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program is an effective way to improve muscle strength and endurance in sedentary women.
