

The background of the cover features a semi-transparent anatomical illustration of a human torso. The skeletal structure, including the rib cage and spine, is rendered in a light blue, wireframe-like style. Overlaid on this is a detailed network of blood vessels. The heart is prominently displayed in the center of the chest, colored in a vibrant red. From the heart, a complex web of red and blue vessels branches out, filling the thoracic and upper abdominal cavities. The blue vessels represent oxygenated blood, while the red vessels represent deoxygenated blood. The overall aesthetic is scientific and professional, with a dark blue background that provides a high contrast for the anatomical details.
