Mathematics in Berlin Heinrich Begehr,Helmut Koch,Jürg Kramer,Norbert Schappacher,Ernst-Jochen Thiele,1998-07-21 This little book is conceived as a service to mathematicians attending the 1998 International Congress of Mathematicians in Berlin It presents a comprehensive condensed overview of mathematical activity in Berlin from Leibniz almost to the present day without however including biographies of living mathematicians Since many towering figures in mathematical history worked in Berlin most of the chapters of this book are concise biographies These are held together by a few survey articles presenting the overall development of entire periods of scientific life at Berlin Overlaps between various chapters and differences in style between the chapters were inevitable but sometimes this provided opportunities to show different aspects of a single historical event for instance the Kronecker Weierstrass controversy The book aims at readability rather than scholarly completeness There are no footnotes only references to the individual bibliographies of each chapter Still we do hope that the texts brought together here and written by the various authors for this volume constitute a solid introduction to the history of Berlin mathematics abstract A Mutation-Selection Model with Recombination for General Genotypes Steven Neil Evans, David Steinsaltz, Kenneth W. Wachter, 2013-02-26 The authors investigate a continuous time probability measure valued dynamical system that describes the process of mutation selection balance in a context where the population is infinite there may be infinitely many loci and there are weak assumptions on selective costs Their model arises when they incorporate very general recombination mechanisms into an earlier model of mutation and selection presented by Steinsaltz Evans and Wachter in 2005 and take the relative strength of mutation and selection to be sufficiently small The resulting dynamical system is a flow of measures on the space of loci Each such measure is the intensity measure of a Poisson random measure on the space of loci the points of a realization of the random measure record the set of loci at which the genotype of a uniformly chosen individual differs from a reference wild type due to an accumulation of ancestral mutations The authors motivation for working in such a general setting is to provide a basis for understanding mutation driven changes in age specific demographic schedules that arise from the complex interaction of many genes and hence to develop a framework for understanding the evolution of aging Excel Mastering the HSC Maximising Your UAI Peter Sheahan, Liz Ramsay, 2002 The Hermitian Two Matrix Model with an Even Quartic Potential Maurice Duits, Arno B. J. Kuijlaars, Man Yue Mo, 2012 The authors consider the two matrix model with an even quartic potential $W(y) = y^4 + \alpha y^2$ and an even polynomial potential $V(x)$ The main result of the paper is the formulation of a vector equilibrium problem for the limiting mean density for the eigenvalues of one of the matrices M_1 The vector equilibrium problem is defined for three measures with external fields on the first and third measures and an upper constraint on the second measure The proof is based on a steepest descent analysis of a 4×4 matrix valued Riemann Hilbert problem that characterizes the correlation kernel for the eigenvalues of M_1 The authors results generalize earlier results for the case $\alpha = 0$ where the external field on the third measure was not present Model-Building Approach in Multiple Regression Zainodin Hj Jubok, Khuneswari Gopal Pillay, Noraini Abdullah, 2019-11-18 The problems faced by the undergraduate students in analysing the data on multiple regressions and the importance of this method had inspired the authors to come up with this book Regression analysis is commonly used by most researchers in business social and behavioural sciences biological sciences and many other fields But there is no proper procedure or approach of model building in regression analysis Therefore this book is aimed at illustrating the procedures to find the best model and the model building approach The model building approach is important in obtaining the best model that well describes the corresponding data set This approach can be used in various research fields such as in economics environmental biological and medical sciences The multiple regression model building approach is applicable in various fields of research It is very useful for researchers to obtain the best model that well describes the data The approach is also useful in identifying the factors that will affect the dependent variable The overall thrusts of the authors efforts have been geared in explaining explicitly the statistical method using regression analysis the model building procedures and its applications so as to meet the needs of today's students. A substantial effort has gone in addressing multicollinearity issues and illustrating steps to overcome them.
