without question to make decisions rapidly and with the highest level of skill. Similarly, on such a sea of pain and noise where patients are nameless and faceless, it is essential to prioritize patients and opt to help those who might be saved by some simple procedure that takes little time at all. This skill called triage is at the heart of emergency care and makes sure that patients receive appropriate treatment when they need it most. Triage has long been seen as a province of emergency rooms and the battlefield, but how well it is done can depend much on skills and expertise. In emergency medical services (EMS) today, the field has shifted with specialized training programs playing an increasingly important role. Training programmes seek to deepen the knowledge base and refine the judgment systems of paramedics, EMTs, and other EMS specialists. The eventual result is that care given to patients once they step through those hospital doors becomes closely dependent on these programs. This book, entitled The Impact of Specialized Training for Emergency Medical Services Specialists on Triage in Emergencies, will study how EMS completion rates affect triage decision making. Key to this study is the relationship between specialized education and hands-on training versus patient results, accuracy and effectiveness of triage under crisis conditions in an emergency environment. The book collates insights from research findings, expert opinions, case studies, and interviews with people in the field to explain the critical role that EMS specialists, especially those who have received advanced specialized training, play in shaping initial ED assessments. We study how this specialized training changes decision-making processes, the handling of patients who are critically ill or injured, and how it can eliminate mistakes that arise when people make judgments about patients trapped in battle conditions such as in the field. This work seeks to highlight not just the profound impact of specialized training but also underscores the need to continually update and improve EMS training programmes in order to stay ahead of what are now rapidly growing challenges. In this way, we hope to provide valuable guidance for health professionals, administrators, policy makers, and educators aiming to enhance patient care, emergency services, and the broader relationship between training and triage. We aim, by discussing both the theoretical frameworks and practices in specialized EMS training, to highlight the unarguable links which exist between better emergency care systems and an efficiently trained EMS personnel. Such an issue looms vastly important as swift and timely decision making in triage too often hinges on the question of life or death. Finally, as you read these chapters, we invite you to tread into a substantial topic: how it is that advanced specialized training can significantly affect the outcome of emergency medical care and what new advances may be within reach for the whole triage process globally.

Resuscitate! Mickey S. Eisenberg, M.D., 2013-05-15. Sudden cardiac arrest is the leading cause of death among adults yet it need not be fatal. Though survival in most communities is very poor, a few communities achieve rates as high as 50%. Why are some communities so successful in snatching life from the jaws of death? Resuscitate! describes the steps any EMS system can take to improve cardiac arrest survival. It is written for the medical directors, administrative directors, fire chiefs, dispatch directors, and program supervisors who direct and run EMS systems all across the country and for the EMTs, paramedics, and dispatchers who provide frontline care This second edition of Resuscitate provides fifteen concrete steps to improve survival Four steps will lead to rapid improvements at the local level and are relatively easy to implement Six additional steps are more difficult to implement but also likely to improve survival The remaining steps recommend changes at the national level Resuscitate is the official textbook for the Resuscitation Academy held twice a year in Seattle Cosponsored by Seattle Medic One King County EMS and the Medic One Foundation the Academy draws attendees from throughout the world for two intensive days of classes demonstrations and workshops to acquire the knowledge and tools to improve survival in their own communities This new edition includes lessons learned from attendees of the Academy as well as from the faculty s evolving thoughts on how to measure performance and improve survival one community at a time It also includes an addendum on the Resuscitation Academy resuscitationacademy.org For more than thirty years Mickey S Eisenberg M D Ph D has played a leading role in developing King County Washington s emergency response to cases of sudden cardiac arrest a system recognized as among the very best in the nation He is a professor of medicine at the University of Washington and serves as the medical director of King County Emergency Medical Services Requirements Engineering for Software and Systems Phillip A.
